Supplementary File 2: Table S2. Inclusion and Exclusion Criteria

Inclusion Criteria	● Written in English language ● Peer Reviewed Journal Articles and Early Access ● Published between 2017-2023 ● Considers a citizen science project or specific communities, or the social/human aspects of citizen science ● Participants or Coordinators use mobile phone technologies, applications, websites or social media for data collection, reporting or education ● Focus is on wildlife or animal conservation or monitoring (including related parasites and pests e.g. mosquitos, ticks)
Exclusion Criteria	● Not written in English ● Data Paper, Conference Papers and Proceedings, Retracted Publications, Grey Literature, Review Papers, Archival Materials, Blogs, Podcasts, Websites, Books, Dissertations and Theses, Encyclopedias and Reference Works, Government Publications, Newspapers, Magazines, Videos and Audio, Books ● Participants or Coordinators do not use mobile phone technologies, applications, websites or social media for data collection, reporting or education. Technologies are only used for recruitment or other purposes, or other technologies such as drones or radio devices are used. ● Is not focused on animal or wildlife monitoring or conservation (including related parasites and pests e.g. mosquitos, ticks). Focus is on plants, fungi or other environmental aspects. ● Is not focused on a citizen science project, specific communities, or the social/human aspects of citizen science. Paper uses citizen science data but is purely extractive/opportunistic data collection, mines existing data across a general citizen website/database e.g. iNaturalist, social media or multiple sources to collect all records of a particular species, rather than from specific Facebook groups or iNaturalist projects