

BLOUINARTINFO

April 14, 2016

Milan Design Week Goes Crazy With Surprising Spaceship, Conceptual Kitchen

By: Laura Maggi

Enrico Marone Cinzano, Dondolo, a rocking chair with a foot in the past and one in the future. At Galleria Rossana Orlandi. Courtesy Enrico Marone Cinzano Studio.

A spaceship that has just landed; a van with an Italian palazzo inside; objects that dream; a rocking chair with a foot in the future; a multi-sensory kitchen: Milan Design Week is going crazy this year.

Here are some eyebrow-raising creations.

4. Enrico Marone Cinzano at Rossana Orlandi Gallery. With a foot in the past and one in the future, Dondolo, a rocking chair designed by Enrico Marone Cinzano, is made from salvaged Alfa Romeo car parts, inspired by his industrial roots. Sustainability is a driving concept for Marone Cinzano, is now in Milan after the success of his premier solo-exhibition at Pearl Lam Galleries during Art Basel Hong Kong. Exclusively made for Rossana Orlandi, a must-go design and creativity hub

Enrico Marone Cinzano, Milan, Rossana Orlandi Gallery, via Matteo Bandello 14/16, www.enricomaronecinzano.com, www.rossanaorlandi.com

Enrico Marone Cinzano, Dondolo, the rocking in the relaxing position. At Galleria Rossana Orlandi. Courtesy Enrico Marone Cinzano Studio

Enrico Marone Cinzano, Dondolo. Rossana Orlandi Gallery