

artnet®

March 24, 2016

Must-See Art Guide: Hong Kong

By: Astyaj Ghassemi

Enrico Marone Cinzano, Double Happiness Cabinet (2015). Courtesy of Pearl Lam Galleries.

Spring is definitely the busiest season in the art world, with its endless art fairs, gallery exhibitions, and blockbuster museum shows. And while the season may be only four days old, the action has already started—with all eyes focused this week on Hong Kong.

Dive face-first into the fourth edition of Art Basel Hong Kong, which draws tens of thousands of visitors including collectors, gallerists, artists, and art enthusiasts from all over the world to experience the best of what the art market has to offer in Modern and contemporary works.

If pushing your way through a crowded art fair isn't how you're looking to spend your weekend, we have got you covered with a list of must-see shows. From Alighiero Boetti to Robert Rauschenberg to Dan Colen, there's something for every art lover.

Exhibition: "China Clean: Enrico Marone Cinzano Solo Exhibition"

When: March 22–April 14, 2016

Where: Pearl Lam Galleries, Shop No. 1 G/F & 1/F, SOHO 189, 189 Queen's Road West, Sheung Wan, Hong Kong, China