

What is the COVID-19 Rapid Respond Fund (CRRF)?

The CRRF was put in place to enable Langeloth to address organizations' urgent and critical needs that have arisen due to the COVID-19 global pandemic.

How does the CRRF differ from Langeloth's established funding cycles and process?

The CRRF supports unforeseeable needs that require a timely—days rather than months—review and decision process. Non-urgent requests will not be considered for the CRRF and must go through the standard application process.

What are the criteria for a CRRF grant?

- Alignment with Langeloth's mission
- Work that will serve the field in this unprecedented time
- Capacity of the organization to fulfill the objectives and goals of their grant
- Demonstrate that the funds will be used to provide a timely and effective response to the COVID-19 pandemic or the pandemic's impact on the grantee

What types and range of grants are appropriate for the CRRF?

The amount will depend on the scale of the problem and the cost of the proposed response/remedy. For example, a grant for technology needs to work from home might be in the $500–$2,000 range, while other responses may require larger amounts. Additional funding can be requested following the submission and review of project activities, outcomes, and expenditures.

The Foundation will not fund research projects.

Who is eligible to receive a CRRF grant?

US-based 501(C)(3) organizations working in Langeloth's fields of interest are eligible to apply.

How do I apply?

Send an email to Andrea Fionda at afionda@langeloth.org with the subject line: COVID-19 Rapid Respond Fund. Include a brief description of your work, the amount you are requesting, and how funds will be used.