Into Whom it May Concern:

Since I can remember I been enjoying the dunes and everything that comes with it, I been visiting the dunes for many years now and enjoy it very much. As I been going I been noticing more and more riding area being taking away from us for no reason. Is there any scientific data to backup the dust is being made by us off road users? I been to the dunes a number of times when wind speeds have gone up to 20mph making it very dusty and making the sand go everywhere but that is Mother Nature not the off road users. You mean to tell me that an atv or any off road vehicle is going to throw sand 30-40 feet up in the air for it to be carried? I enjoy the dunes and would like for them to stay open so one day my kids can enjoy it as much as I did as I was a kid and still continue to do so. Please have some consideration and have some hard facts to backup the dust argument. The dunes were there way before any one decided to move there why should they be shut down, people knew where they were moving. It's like moving next to a dairy farm and complaining about the smell. Please don't shut the dunes down.
