There are hundreds of thousands of people, maybe millions, that want the dunes open. Unfortunately we do not have the time or the resources that retired activists have to fight for what we believe.

There are people that want the dunes closed because they have been lied to about dust. There are people that want the dunes closed because they think we are riff-raff. There are people that want the dunes closed because they think we are bringing down the value of homes that were built too close to the dunes. There are people that want the dunes closed because they think they are saving the planet.

The reality is there are studies that disprove every study that is used to close the dunes but they are ignored because they do not meet the agenda. When one tactic fails they move on to the next. The opposition to the dunes knows that eventually something will work even if it is a lie. This has become political and in politics there is almost never common ground. There is only arguing and the loudest voice wins.

Pay attention to the details rather than the squeaky wheel. Let the facts and the truth prevail.

Thanks
Jack
