Today's cowardly attack in Brussels should serve as a wakeup call for politicians across the globe. But sadly, when reality conflicts with the ideology of many in Europe, as well as many in power in the United States, reality rarely prevails. Those very same ideologues, who respond today with stark condemnation, will commence their apology tour in the coming days. As we witnessed in the aftermath of the San Bernardino and Paris attacks, legitimate concern and justifiable outrage will surely be met with charges of racism and islamophobia.

America must be ever vigilant in the face of an enemy who hides in the shadows and chooses a battlefield where innocent civilians are slaughtered with the very reverence the Nazis showed the Jews. We are at war with a people who do not fight by the rules and refuse the burden of honor. Unless we heed to the reality at hand, our Trojan horse will bear the name "REFUGEE".
