IN OUR GALLERIES

NOW SHOWING APRIL 14-JUNE 4

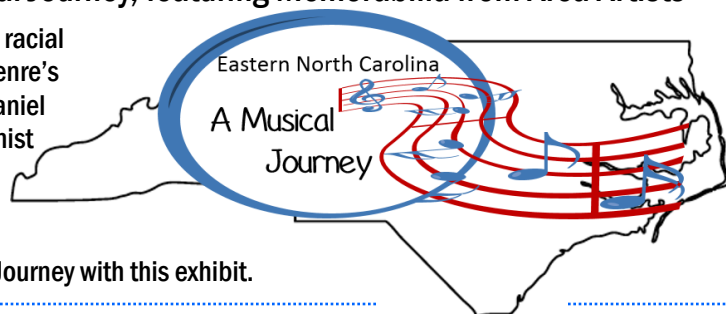

Hampton Gallery – Paint NC: Renderings from the Mountains to the Coast — This display features original paintings of studio and plein air paintings from PAINT NC, a group of professional and emerging plein air artists from across North Carolina. Renderings include a variety of subject matter in oil, watercolor, pastel and mixed medium.

Originally the PAINT NC’s exhibit was known as “painting IN plein air in the Triangle”, as the majority of the founding members were located in or around central North Carolina. However, over the past few years, the group expanded the exhibit to become “painting en plein air in North Carolina”, with events hosted in the eastern region including a show at the Greenville Museum. Between March and December, the group hosts weekly “paint outs” and sponsors two to three exhibits and shows per year for members. Dues are $10 per year for group participants. Each member agrees to host at least one “paint out” during the year. For the past several years, members of PAINT NC have supported the annual Beaufort Home and Gardens Tour, by painting along the Beaufort, NC waterfront each June. To learn more about PAINT NC and view samples of members’ works, visit the organization’s website: www.paintnc.org.

En plein air is a French phrase meaning open (in full) air and is the act of painting outdoors with the painter creating artwork from what is actually seen including existing visual conditions at the time of painting. This method has been a favored technique of Impressionists and achieved particular popularity in the late 1800s with the introduction of tubed paints and the portable box easel. Artists use acrylics, watercolors and oils to produce field paintings based on artistic observations.

Blizzard Gallery – Eastern North Carolina: A Musical Journey, featuring Memorabilia from Area Artists

American funk emerged in the 1960s and spirited a movement of racial integration through upbeat tempos and rhythmic dancing. This genre’s pioneers include Kinston and eastern North Carolina artists Nathaniel “Nat” Jones (song writer, composer and music director), saxophonist Maceo Parker, drummer Melvin Parker, trombonist and trumpeter Levi Rasbury, trumpeter Robert “Dick” Knight, and drummer Sam Lathan. Eastern North Carolina has a rich musical heritage in many genres of music – join us on A Musical Journey with this exhibit.

Minges Gallery – Connie Winters – Connie (photo below) displays some of her vibrant impressionist-style paintings in the Minges Gallery. Connie skillfully translates her vision of color and light to create lush landscape scenes and brilliant hue-filled interiors. Visit her website: www.conniewintersart.com. Included below are some photos of participants of the Connie Winters Workshop held at the Arts Center in April.

Rayner & Children’s Galleries – Artwork of Students – Display of art created by students from the International Baccalaureate programs at South Lenoir High School, with teacher Laura Jackson, and Kinston High School, with teacher Prishonda Daniels. Also, included is art by Rochelle Middle School eighth grader Tamera White, taught by Sarah Sloop.

Blount Street Gallery – Neuse Quilters Guild – The Neuse Quilters Guild is raffling a queen-sized, “day & night” patterned quilt (95” x 107”). The quilt pattern was created by Eleanor Burns and Michelle Countess. NQG members made the quilt top and the quilt was professionally machine-quilted by Lilly Lucier of Vanceboro, NC. The quilt is on display in the Blount Street Gallery and will be displayed as exhibit space is available. Tickets are $1 each or six (6) for $5 and are on sale NOW. The drawing will be August 31, 2016; you need not be present to win. Tickets are available at Community Council for the Arts.

NEWS FROM THE ARTS CENTER

There will be a dedication April 28, 2016, at 4:00 p.m. for “Flue” at Tobacco Square, located at the corner of Mitchell and Blount Streets. This public art display is an earthcast sculpture created by world renowned artist Thomas Sayre, of Raleigh, NC. Join us for this dedication and the reception immediately following the dedication ceremony at the Arts Center at 400 N. Queen Street. Sculptor Thomas Sayre will be the keynote speaker. “Flue” acts as a bridge between the arts and cultural district and the downtown business district in Kinston and is a collaboration between SmART Kinston City Project Foundation and Community Council for the Arts. The installation consists of seven tobacco barn facades 28 feet high and 16 feet wide, and pays homage to Kinston’s tobacco heritage. Along with the dedication and reception, Thomas Sayre will be meeting with middle and high school students during the day, facilitating questions and answers to his design and being an sculptor. He will also be speaking at the Noon Rotary Club, meeting at Kings Barbecue.
