ON DISPLAY JUNE 9-AUGUST 6

Hampton Gallery — Eastern North Carolina Connections — This display features original artwork from four (4) accomplished artists from our region and depicts North Carolina scenes and images from their journeys. Among these artists are: ELEANOR COX, BEVERLY PERDUE, AMANDA PETERSON, and FRED SAUNDERS. Each of these artists enjoy painting “en plein air” and often reflect their travels around home and abroad. Subjects such as pastoral landscapes, water scenes, and hillside villas, may be found among their fine collection created in watercolors and oils. Each artist has a distinctive style, but the one voice of gifted painters, connected to Eastern North Carolina. For more information on these artists, visit their websites: www.eleanorcox.com, www.beverlyperdue.com, and www.jayfredsaunders.blogspot.

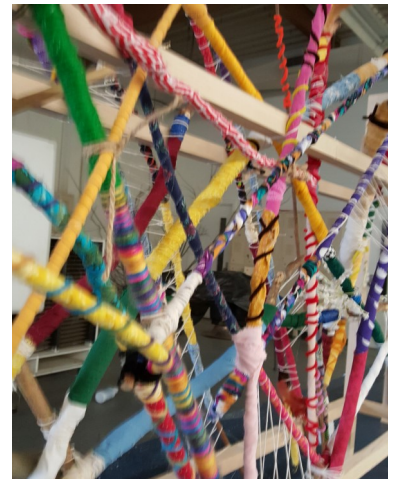

The Kenneth & Kristi Blizzard Gallery — Art by Jane Horner — Jane is a life-long artist. Glimpses of her experiences in archaeology, garden restoration, and teaching art can be seen in her paintings, sculptures and installations. Her artwork has been displayed in galleries, art centers, museums and universities, within and upon large walls of concert and lecture halls, skylights and atriums. To view more about Jane and her art, visit her website: www.janehornerartist.com.

My work is informed by process. It is an exploratory naturally ebullient process that is beyond product. The mediums are painting, drawing, installation and assemblage. At core of all these pursuits, I find light, a quest for elegance of form, and a never-ending discovery of more to be seen.

— Jane Horner

Most recently, Jane served as a guest artist, instructing students as a part of Rochelle Middle School’s A+ program. The artist residency program is made possible by a grant from the North Carolina Council to the Community Council for the Arts in order to help the school shape its curriculum around the arts as a way to engage students. Jane worked with students in art teacher Sarah Sloop’s classes to create talking sticks, crepe myrtle branches wrapped and decorated. The project, reflective of American Indian culture and traditions, was introduced as a method by which students could share their story, as a self-portraiture. Students personalized their art using leather, fabric, beads, feathers and other materials. Students’ individual talking sticks were then organized into a single sculpture depicting their voice.

Minges Gallery — Connie Winters — Through August 6 — On display are some of Connie’s vibrant impressionist-style paintings. Connie skillfully translates her vision of color and light to create lush landscape scenes and brilliant hue-filled interiors. Visit her website: www.conniewintersart.com.

ON DISPLAY THROUGH JUNE

Blount Street Gallery — This exhibition features entries submitted from participants visiting from all over North Carolina and various other states. Artists submitted a maximum of three pieces of plein air work and were judged this year by John Poon, a nationally known landscape artist from Liberty, Utah. Visit John’s website: www.johnpoon.com.
