It will be designed to engage and serve our parish as it brings community, sharing, and prayer into our already vibrant celebrations of the sacraments.

Be Prepared

Reflection by Bob Schrimpf

I guess it was my training as a lifeguard that saved a life that day. I was on vacation with my family in Mexico. As I sat at the ocean's edge I could see there was a very large beach break pounding the shoreline. My kids were playing nearby and so I kept a watchful eye on them but I would also scan the beach from time to time. It was crowded because hundreds of locals were enjoying a holiday and swarmed to the beach that day.

At one point my eye caught sight of a young mother with her newborn in her arms wading out into the water. In an instant disaster struck. A large wave smashed down upon her and in a matter of seconds, she surfaced screaming for her baby that had been ripped from her arms. I was already in a dead sprint towards her and as she was rising out of the water screaming I was diving in. To this day I can not explain how, but as I dove into the murky brown water I saw a glimpse of the baby's leg. I grabbed him and hauled him up. I turned to the young mother - returned her child and walked her back to the shoreline. I'm not sure more than a handful of people at the beach even knew what had happened as it only took a few seconds.

Had I not been vigilant and recognized the danger the story could have had a much different ending. In the Gospel, Jesus is talking about this type of vigilance. Luke's audience expected Christ's return to be any day. As in the story the Master has left for a wedding feast (which is a symbol of Jesus' resurrection). The good servants were ready even though He came back at an hour they did not expect (which will be either His second coming or our passing from this world), and He was so overjoyed with those faithful servants that He begins to wait on them (this is Heaven!)

So how do we remain vigilant? Have faith and daily prayer are great ways to start. Mass should also be a priority and serving one another a must. The watchful master of a home is always keeping an eye out for the thief (Satan) and his desire to steal souls. Above all else, it's the Eucharist that is the best way to stay vigilant.

That day at the beach vigilance saved a life. Every day we must have this type of vigilance and awareness as if it were our very last day. We should not let ourselves become preoccupied with things of this world. Let us remind one another that we all must remain vigilant with expectant faith for the return of The Master!

A warm 'You Are Loved' to Amelia Perich! Amelia was part of the original parish when it used to meet at the Loma Theater prior to the construction of the Hall (which Served as the first Church) Amelia turned 103 on July 15th!
