No. 14 AP / No. 11 Coaches'
TEXAS A&M AGGIES
(26-10, 11-5 SEC)

On The Aggies

- Texas A&M reached the Sweet 16 for the seventh time in school history, but the first time since 2014. The Aggies have made six Sweet 16 appearances since 2008.
- The Aggies' 26 wins tie for the fifth-most in school history, and are the most since 2013-14
- The Aggies closed the season with eight wins in their last 11 games, with all three losses coming to the two national finalists, Notre Dame and Mississippi State
- Every A&M recruiting class since the 2004-05 freshman class has played in at least one Sweet 16
- The Aggies erased a 17-point deficit against DePaul, marking the fourth-largest comeback in NCAA Tournament history. Exactly 365 days prior, the Aggies set the record with a 21-point comeback vs. Penn
- Chennedy Carter set a Texas A&M NCAA Tournament record with 37 points in the Second Round, including a game-winning 3-pointer with 3.2 seconds left
- Texas A&M is 25-14 all-time in the NCAA Tournament
- Chennedy Carter was the Consensus National Freshman of the Year. She has also earned AP All-America, SEC Freshman of the Year, First Team All-SEC and SEC All-Freshman team honors this season.
- Carter, the nation's leading scorer among freshmen, has posted three of the top five single-game scoring totals in Texas A&M history (School-record 46 at USC, 37 vs. DePaul, 36 at South Carolina)
- Khaalia Hillsman was named Second Team All-SEC, her second straight All-SEC selection
- Hillsman ranks in Texas A&M's career top 10 for points, rebounds, blocks and double-doubles
- The Aggies are ranked No. 14 in the Associated Press Top 25 and No. 11 in the USA Today/Coaches' Poll.
- The Aggies went 17-3 in Reed Arena this season, including a 7-1 mark in SEC home games. The Aggies ride a seven-game home winning streak into 2018-19, and have won 12 of their last 13 home games
- Texas A&M's 77.7 points per game were the most for the Aggies since 1994-95, and the third-most in school history
- Texas A&M set a school records with 584 made free throws and a 77.2 free throw percentage
- Texas A&M head coach Gary Blair is 357-151 in 15 seasons in Aggieland. He is 765-314 in his Hall of Fame career, which ranks 8th among active coaches in wins

GARY BLAIR

15th Season at Texas A&M

Women's Basketball Hall of Fame member, Gary Blair, led Texas A&M to the 2011 NCAA Championship and has transformed the women's basketball program into a national power since his appointment as head coach in 2003.

Blair, a two-time national finalist for the Naismith Coach of the Year Award, has guided Texas A&M to 13 straight NCAA Tournament appearances, and to four conference championships, including the 2013 SEC Tournament Championship.

Blair led the Aggies to their first national title in their first-ever trip to the NCAA Women's Final Four and closed out the 2010-11 season with a 33-5 record, the most victories in program history.

The Aggies have made six appearances in the Sweet Sixteen in the past 11 years, and reached the Elite Eight in 2008, 2011 and 2014.

Over the course of his 33-year collegiate coaching career (this includes 2017-18), which includes stops at Stephen F. Austin from 1985-93 and Arkansas from 1993-03, Blair has led his teams to 32 winning seasons (including 2017-18), 27 20-win seasons (including 2017-18), 24 NCAA Tournament appearances (including 2017-18) and 35 NCAA postseason victories.

Blair has won a championship at every level of his coaching career, including three state championships at Dallas South Oak Cliff High School, two national championships as an assistant coach at Louisiana Tech, a WNIT Championship at Arkansas and an NCAA championship at Texas A&M.

ON BLAIR'S CAREER

- Blair led Texas A&M to the 2011 NCAA Championship, and 13 straight NCAA Tournament appearances
- Blair is a member of six Hall of Fames, including the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame
- Blair is one of three coaches who has taken two or more schools to the Women's Final Four, joining Marianne Stanley (Old Dominion & Stanford) and C. Vivian Stringer (Cheyney, Iowa, Rutgers)
- Blair is sixth among active coaches with 24 NCAA Tournament appearances
- Blair has won 20+ games in 27 seasons which is 11th all-time
- Seven of Blair's former players and assistants have gone on to become head Division I women's basketball coaches
- Blair has won a total of 17 conference and conference tournament championships between the Southland Conference, Big 12, and SEC

#5 - ANRIEL HOWARD

JUNIOR (2L) / TELECOMMUNICATIONS MAJOR
FORWARD / 5-11 / ATLANTA, GA. (WESTLAKE HS)

About Anriel

- Holds A&M's records in single-game rebounds, single-season rebounds, career rebounds and career double doubles
- Looking to to average a double-double for a second straight season after being the first Aggie to do so since 1988-89 last year
- Set an NCAA Tournament Record and Texas A&M single-game record with 27 rebounds against Missouri State (Mar. 19, 2016)

Trends/Rankings

- Has five career games with 20+ points and 10+ rebounds
- Ranks 7th nationally and second in the SEC in rebounds per game
- Ranks 8th nationally in double-doubles
- Made 10 three-pointers this year, after making just one in her first two seasons combined

Recently

- Earned the game ball, scoring 18 points with 19 rebounds in the Aggies' comeback Second Round win vs. DePaul (Mar. 18)
- Had 17 rebounds against Mississippi State (Mar. 3)
- Had 21 points and 12 rebounds against Florida (Feb. 15)
- Scored 21 points with 14 boards and 3 assists against LSU (Jan. 22)
- Grabbed 17 rebounds at Southern California (Dec. 15)

Awards

- Named to SEC Community Service Team

Career Game Highlights

- Had 20 points, 10 rebounds, five assists and five steals against A&M-Corpus Christi (Dec. 10, 2016), the first SEC player with those stats in a single game since Tennessee's Candace Parker in 2008

Aggie women's basketball team using tight rotation heading into matchup with Auburn

Richard Croome - The Eagle - Feb. 4, 2018

Texas A&M women's basketball coach Gary Blair rarely peers over his shoulder at his bench, and when he does, he doesn't have to look far if a change is needed.

All five Aggie starters are averaging at least 30 minutes per game, and at least 34 minutes in Southeastern Conference play heading into A&M's game against Auburn at 3 p.m. Sunday. It's a statistic that some might raise an eyebrow at, wondering if the starters won't eventually wear down.

"We've lived with that for two years now, and it hasn't hurt us so far," said Blair, who essentially had a six-player rotation last season while posting a 22-12 record. "I'd love for my bench to play more minutes, but if we can't get separation and my best players are playing, with as many timeouts as you have and with as many reviews that you have, we think we are getting enough and the proper rest."

Blair also pulls back the reins on his starters during practice to allow them to recover while also giving the substitutes quality practice time that he hopes down the line will prove invaluable.

At the moment, the No. 14 Aggies (17-6, 6-3) have a seven-player rotation, with freshman Kayla Wells and senior Lulu McKinney the lone two used to spell the starters when they are in foul trouble or in need of a quick break.

Wells is playing 11 minutes and McKinney 10 minutes a game. With four starters averaging at least 11 points a game and a fifth, Jasmine Lumpkin, proving she is indispensable with nights like she had against Tennessee — 22 points and seven rebounds — Blair isn't asking Wells and McKinney to come in and carry the team.

"When LuLu comes in, I want her to be able to sustain where we are," Blair said. "I'm not asking her to grow the lead, just sustain, run my plays, no turnovers, get it to the hot person at the time, and overall she has done a pretty good job of that."

McKinney, a 5-foot-7 point guard out of A&M Consolidated who transferred from UTEP, has a 2-to-1 assist-to-turnover ratio but has not shot the ball well and averages only two points per game.

Wells, an athletic 6-footer, has picked up her game in SEC play, but is still only averaging 2.9 points and 1.7 rebounds in league games.

"I'm wanting energy [from Wells]," Blair said. "She's doesn't have to worry about being in foul trouble, so I want her to be aggressive, drive the ball to the basket. If she can get to the free-throw line, she is a 90 percent shooter. I want her to be faster, more aggressive and use that athletic ability."

A&M's reserves, as is usually the case for Power 5 conference bench players, especially young ones, are not used to playing sparingly, and it takes a certain mindset to make that transition.

"It's been a big adjustment from playing a lot to not playing as much, so I just try to do the most with the minutes I do get every game," Wells said. "I look at what we are doing wrong and think 'What I can do to change it?' If we're not rebounding, I'm going to block out, and if we are not playing defense, I'm going to do that. So if I see the mistakes some of the starters are making, I try to get in and not do the same things."

A&M's bench as a unit has more minutes than only one starter, more points than only one starter and more rebounds than two starters. It's an ongoing process for Blair, who wants to see more from his bench all the time, not just in games.

"I'm not even satisfied with all my starters right now, and I'm not satisfied with my coaching right now because I want more," Blair said. "I want kids to sit there and live in the moment. How does the bench get better? By putting more time in the practice gym than my starters, that's how you get better, more time on your own, working on your skills and your game."

The Aggies are not alone in shortening their bench. No. 12 Tennessee's bench only played 32 minutes in its 82-67 victory over A&M on Thursday and some of those minutes came at the end when the game was decided. No. 1 UConn, when not afforded the luxury of being way up on an opponent, for the most part uses one player off the bench.

Blair believes the women's game is more conducive to having a shorter bench than the men's game, citing the fact that they play quarters rather than halves as one thing that allows players to take a break.

"Maybe we're not as physical, maybe not playing as fast and because of the timeout situations and the two-shot fouls instead of the one-and-one, your post players have a little more time to gather themselves and get a little bit of rest," Blair said.

With A&M already having an 82-73 victory over the Tigers on the road this season, Blair would love to get the chance to give his bench some more minutes against the Tigers (11-10, 2-7).

"We tried to reward them at Vanderbilt when we got two fouls on [Khaaliala] Hillsman, [Anriel] Howard and Chennedy [Carter] all in the first half," Blair said. "Our bench came in and was able to sustain but remember we were playing Vanderbilt (6-17 overall), not Tennessee. They are always rewarded with a lot of praise when my bench does play well like they did in the game before with Vanderbilt."

Motocross helped mold Texas A&M basketball player Danni Williams

Travis L. Brown - My Aggie Nation - Feb. 23, 2018

On Jan. 11, Danni Williams stepped up to the free throw line at Reed Arena with seven ticks remaining on the overtime clock and Texas A&M trailing No. 6 Tennessee, 76-75.

Nearly 94 feet away, Williams' father, Regan, began to feel anxious. With ease, Danni drained all three free throws, none of which even glanced the rim. The Aggies took the ranked matchup, 79-76, thanks to the clutch moment from Williams.

"Why did I doubt her?" Regan said. "Why was I so nervous, because I've watched her when it's on the line, time and time again? She just performs."

Danni is no stranger to high-adrenaline situations. She grew up playing basketball with her older brothers, but much of her athletic prowess also came from driving up to 80 mph on motocross tracks.

"Just watching Danni ride, you could tell, she just had the hand-eye coordination, the focus, the athletic ability, the competitiveness -- that drive just to win," Regan said.

Back in Clovis, New Mexico, there are boxes of trophies in the Williams' house that tell the story of how a two-time motocross national champion became an All-SEC guard.

The starting line

Initially, Regan's idea was to get Danni's brothers, Josh and Dustin, into motocross. After all, Regan's father taught him to ride when he was a child. Regan would eventually go on to race in the Grand Nationals at the Astrodome in Houston.

Danni was the child that immediately showed a knack for riding. At age 4, before she could ride a bicycle, she was able to rev around on a dirt bike with training wheels, Regan said.

"Just being out on the track, it gave me a general rush and I loved that," Danni said. "I loved going fast and jumping high. I do think, for a while, motocross was my favorite. It was my favorite sport for sure."

By the time Danni was 5, Regan and his wife Michelle hauled three children all over the country, with motorcycle in tow, hitting race after race. Professional riders often begin racing around that age, Regan said.

Danni was usually the only girl in the field and frequently took on older boys. If she didn't win the race, she was giving the boys a run for their money, Regan said.

"She was 80 pounds, racing a 150-pound motorcycle," Regan said. "Riding with her hair on fire."

Beginning at age 8, Danni got a shot at girls her age from around the country at the Women's Motocross Association Nationals, which was held at Cycle Ranch in Floresville, Texas. Twice, she left as a national champion.

In 2005, Danni came to Floresville aiming to compete above her age range on a bigger 65CC dirt bike. (Every racing classification is divided by the volume of the cylinders in the motorcycle's engine, which is measured in cubic centimeters, or CCs.) When a friend mentioned she was still eligible to race at the 50CC level, Danni hopped on a borrowed bike, entered the race and won a national title. She had not ridden a 50CC bike in six months, Regan said.

After finishing fourth and fifth in her national championship races in 2006, Danni took home another title at the 65CC classification in 2007.

"That was just amazing, because that is the best of the best," Danni said. "There are some girls that I raced against that are now pros racing. That was really cool to see that I was able to do that at that level, being so young. It was one of my most memorable experiences."

As the size of the bikes continued to increase, so did the danger of serious injury. Throughout Danni's motocross career, her father served as her mechanic. The weight of the consequences that fell on his work became too much, he said.

"When she started off on 50s the first couple of years, it's cute," Regan said. "They're out there riding, they're not jumping much. It's cute and it's exciting and it's competitive. Then you get to the point where she was on that 150 [CC], and hitting triple jumps, and she's 18 or 20 feet in the air -- and the whole time your stomach is in knots."

In 2007, at a track just outside of Lubbock, the family's outlook on the sport took a turn in a split second. Another young rider crashed directly in front of the Williams' trailer after flying through a triple jump, Michelle and Regan said.

Michelle, a nurse, ran to assist after the crash, Regan said, but the boy died. Danni and her father were preparing for the race and did not witness the crash, Regan said. Just minutes after the track was cleared, Danni ran her heat, not knowing what had just occurred.

After the 2007 national championship, they put the bikes in the garage for good, Regan said, much to the dismay of 11-year-old Danni.

"I didn't really understand it," Danni said. "I knew [there was a crash], but later, talking about it, I think that's when my parents kind of decided that basketball is the best option. At the time, I didn't understand. I was like, 'That won't happen to me,' or, 'It hasn't happened, so why can't I keep racing?'"

Danni was also participating in basketball, softball and volleyball. Her parents decided to fill time spent traveling for motocross with AAU basketball travel.

In life after motocross, she became the first three-time winner of the Gatorade Player of the Year award in New Mexico and held a five-star ranking, according to ESPN. She received double-digit offers from programs across the country.

Beyond the court, she was her class valedictorian at Clovis High School.

Danni's fearless approach on the court caught the eye of Texas A&M head coach Gary Blair.

"She's got ice in her veins," Blair said with a smile.

Blazing a new trail

On Danni's Texas A&M basketball biography, she lists her parents as her role models. Their decision pushed her to become one of the best shooters in the SEC.

"Thankfully, by the grace of God, I never got injured riding," she said. "But now, looking back, I can say I definitely support my parents' decision of taking that away from me, because basketball has opened so many doors for me."

After her sophomore season, Danni earned a second-team All-SEC nod after averaging 16.6 points per game. She had the highest single-season scoring increase in A&M history after averaging 3.1 points as a freshman. She also set the school's sophomore scoring record with 563 points.

With a 20-point performance against Auburn on Feb. 4, she became the 30th player to reach the 1,000-point plateau for A&M. She ranks 17th in the conference in points per game at a 14.2 clip.

Both Danni and Regan say that those milestones are thanks in part to skill sets she learned on the track. Basketball moves in slow motion, she said, compared to the high-speed action of a race, which allows her to see passing lanes as plays develop.

"In dirt bikes, you're always having to look ahead," Danni said. "You can't look down. You'll crash. You're always having to look ahead and look around you and check your surroundings. I do think, in basketball, that helped my vision, because it's the same. If I have somebody running next to me or I see the floor ahead of me, it's easier to see reads."

Blair said that Danni keeps a level head, free from emotional swings, when she is on the court. It's another trait that goes back to her racing days.

"I don't really show a whole lot of emotion in a game," Danni said. "I do probably feel like that has a lot to do with motocross. You have to be so focused in what you are doing in that moment in motocross. In basketball, I feel like it helps because I can't necessarily think about stuff that happened plays ago, because I need to be focused in the moment."

"I've never seen her mad in my life, in high school or here," Blair said. "She's just down to earth."

Blair said he isn't lining up to race a dirt bike anytime soon, but he is thankful for the years of racing that helped make Danni the player he coaches today.

"I give her a lot of credit," he said. "She's got no fear, and that's what you have to have when you're an athlete. You have to have that no-fear mentality. You can't worry about failure. You start thinking about success."

Traveling adventures

From all the years of hauling a motocross trailer around the country, traveling became second nature to the Williams family.

Danni Williams' parents -- and often her brother Dustin -- make the nearly 8-hour drive from their hometown of Clovis, New Mexico, to College Station for each A&M home game.

"It means the world to me," Danni said. "I don't even know what other words that can describe how full my heart feels when I can see them in the stands cheering me on."

Regan and Michelle Williams shuffle their work schedules throughout the winter to make it to Danni's 18 home games.

On Nov. 26, approximately 100 friends and family from Clovis made the hour-and-40-minute drive to Lubbock to watch the Aggies take down Texas Tech, 90-56. Danni netted 14 points in the contest, including four 3-pointers.

Home game attendance is a tradition the family has carried throughout Danni's three years at A&M, including a freshman season in which she averaged just 9.8 minutes per game.

"My freshman year, when I really didn't play, they were sitting in the stands every single game, supporting me," Danni said. "I had a hard time not playing. Now that I've overcome that and I am where I am, just seeing their constant support and always knowing I have them to go to, it means the world to me."

Jasmine Lumpkin has become ultimate role player for No. 17 Aggie women

Robert Cessna - The Eagle - Feb. 25, 2018

Jasmine Lumpkin's personality keeps teammates laughing, her defensive play gets opponents frowning.

The traits are just a couple of Lumpkin's many that help make her a perfect role player, one the 17th-ranked Texas A&M women's basketball team will miss when she's gone.

Lumpkin's time at A&M is drawing to a close. The senior is assured of only three more games -- the regular-season finale against 13th-ranked Missouri at Reed Arena at 3 p.m. Sunday along with at least one game at the Southeastern Conference and NCAA tournaments.

"Every game for me is a blur after it's over, because I play the game in the moment," the 6-foot forward said. "Every game I take the court with my teammates and my sisters are memories I'm going to add to my lifetime. You just don't get stuff like this, the opportunities ... you have to take advantage of it."

Lumpkin certainly has.

She's started every game for the Aggies (21-8, 10-5) this season, which is one more start than she had over the previous two seasons combined. She's averaging 6.9 points and 6.0 rebounds per game this season, modest marks but both career highs -- in fact, she already has 51 more rebounds, 15 steals and two more blocks than all of last season. She's also making 44.8 percent of her field goals (77 of 172), an 8-percent improvement.

But those numbers don't do her justice. Lumpkin's the team's best defender, versatile enough to guard anyone on the perimeter and almost any inside player no matter the height.

"Every now and then you've got to have a role player on the team, a kid who will accept that role on the team," A&M coach Gary Blair said. "She's our best defensive player -- to me, that's a very important role. Lumpkin is just solid. She's a silent leader. She does it by her actions, generally not her words."

But offense gets the attention, so when Lumpkin scored a career-high 22 points in the first half at Tennessee on Feb. 1, the TV announcers just raved about her.

"I guess it's that mentality that I know [some] teams aren't going to guard me," Lumpkin said, "and I was getting the ball a lot that game, so I was feeling good and was taking those shots and they were going in and I was confident. But I know what I'm good at and what I'm capable of every game. We have other players on the team who can score and do other things well, so if I'm not going to be the one taking the shots, I'm going to be doing other things out there on the court."

She wasn't even A&M's leading scorer by game's end, for after hitting 10 of 11 in the first half, she took only one shot after halftime. But she had a team-high seven rebounds, two assists, a steal and a block while playing all 40 minutes.

"I'm just trying to be solid every game, just sticking to my strengths and knowing what I'm capable of," Lumpkin said. "I am a senior, so I've got to play every game like it's my last. I've just been having that mentality the last few ballgames, because it is coming to an end, slowly. I'm just trying to take advantage of it and live in the moment."

Lumpkin is coming off maybe her most complete game of the season in a 104-60 victory over Arkansas. She scored 10 of her 17 points in the first quarter with Arkansas more concerned about defending A&M's leading scorers. Lumpkin hit 7 of 9 shots overall, grabbed five rebounds and guarded Malica Monk, the Razorbacks' leading scorer, who made just 3 of 12 field goals.

"Jazz Lumpkin has turned into our X-factor this year," Blair said. "She was magnificent against Arkansas. I mean when they decided they were going to stay away from her for a while, we found her, and she drove to the basket and hit the shots. Everything that we needed [she did]. Jazz's confidence is at an all-time high."

Happy out of spotlight

Lumpkin wasn't always a role player. She was the go-to player for Joliet Catholic while leading it to the Illinois state title her junior season and a state runner-up finish as a senior.

She hasn't had trouble adjusting to a supporting role at A&M -- and Lumpkin says even at Joliet, she still enjoying doing the behind-the-scenes dirty work.

"I mean I don't have to score all the points or grab all the rebounds," she said. "I just try to go out there with the same intensity every game, and I will say I did play like that in high school. I did score and I did do more [offensively], but I also did do those little things."

Blair said what makes Lumpkin rare is her healthy amount of confidence without the unhealthy level of ego that confidence often comes with.

"She's a very quiet captain," he said. "She does it by how hard she plays on the court."

A&M assistant coach Bob Starkey, who is in charge of the defense, has praised Lumpkin many time on postgame radio shows. A&M is having one of its weaker defensive seasons in recent years, in part because of a lack of depth and enough skill offensively to lean on that side of the court, but Lumpkin's passion for defending is the welcomed exception.

Transferring fortunes

A&M was lucky to get Lumpkin, who transferred from Michigan after starting 14 games as a freshman to be closer to her family, which is now in Houston.

"You know you can always call your people on the phone, but it's good to know they're up the street maybe an hour and 30 minutes away," Lumpkin said. "They're able to come visit, come see you all the time or vice versa. I think family has been big for me since I moved out here."

"And Texas A&M is just a unique school with its history and tradition. You don't get this type of experience everywhere you go. I'm also thankful for that."

She's also grateful for caring teammates and Texas weather.

"I'm used to being in Chicago and Michigan, where it's cold and there's blizzards," Lumpkin said. "I mean the weather here has been pretty bipolar, but I can't complain about it."

She's also appreciates the trips to Spain and Hawaii.

"I went to places that I wanted to see but never thought I would see them," Lumpkin said. "Basketball has been that platform for me, and then there's my teammates: These are my lifetime sisters. I'm going to take them with me everywhere I go."

Lumpkin eventually will be a nurse, following in her mother's footsteps, but Blair says her senior season will give her a chance to play professionally overseas if she chooses.

"It's bittersweet," Lumpkin said. "I mean, I don't want to be done with basketball, but then again I want to get my career started."

Amateur comedian

If she asks advice from her teammates, they won't know if she's being serious or setting them up for a prank.

"Her personality is awesome," senior center Khaalia Hillsman said, adding that she was happy when Lumpkin decided to transfer to A&M. "I told [teammates] I played with her in high school -- I played with her and against her. So I told them she wasn't going to be who she is right now at first, just because she has to get a feel for everybody, but I told them once she gets a feel for you guys, she's hilarious and she's one of a kind."

"She's always coming up with some funny term or slogan, and we just run with it. It's just hilarious being around her. She's just always so happy and positive. I don't think I've ever seen Jazz explode or get mad. She'll get frustrated, but she's on to the next thing in a blink of an eye. I think that's really awesome."

It's part of how Lumpkin keeps her sense of humor, something she's good at maintaining.

"I'm very goofy," she said. "I mean I'm one of the goofiest people on my team. I think my God-given talent was to make people laugh. Maybe not everyone knows that about me, but my teammates do. On the outside looking in, I may look shy, but I'm actually very funny."

A&M women hand keys to car to freshman phenom Chennedy Carter

Brent Zwerneman - Houston Chronicle - February 28, 2018

COLLEGE STATION - Chennedy Carter had her own version of the old football term "basketball on grass" back home in Mansfield, only it was to better herself at basketball while somewhat involving tennis.

Allow Carter, Texas A&M's standout freshman point guard, to better explain.

"My dad had me doing things I didn't think were possible," Carter said. "He had me dribbling a tennis ball in the grass. I would tell him, 'Dad, I can't dribble it, the ball keeps bouncing away.' He'd say, 'You've got to learn to control the ball. If you can dribble it in the grass, you can dribble it on the court.'"

'I sleep with a basketball'

Plenty of parents push their children to excel in sports, but the fervor must be reciprocated by the youth. That was never an issue with Carter.

"Honestly, I sleep with a basketball," Carter said, adding that she was serious. "That's how much love I have for the game."

It has been evident for the No. 15 Aggies, who play Arkansas on Thursday in the league tournament in Nashville, Tenn.

A&M (22-8), which earned a bye in the first round of the SEC tournament as its No. 5 seed, is angling to host the first two rounds of the NCAA Tournament, and Carter is a big reason why the Aggies have a good chance.

This week, Carter, whose first name is pronounced "Kennedy," was named SEC Freshman of the Year after leading all freshmen nationally in scoring by averaging 22 points per game. She also set an SEC freshman record as well as a school mark with 46 points in a nonconference contest against Southern California on Dec. 15.

Exceeding the fanfare

In addition, the dynamic playmaker was named first-team all-conference by the Associated Press and the league's unanimous newcomer of the year.

"She has lived up to everything that she was supposed to be," A&M coach Gary Blair said of Carter, the nation's sixth-ranked player a year ago out of Mansfield's Timberview High. "She's backed up the (hype) and been consistent. She hasn't just scored 46 points in one game and disappeared in the next two.

"She's only had one game scoring under 10 points, and that was eight."

Carter grew up 75 miles north of Waco and was a big-time Baylor fan. The Lady Bears won national titles in 2005 and 2012 and coach Kim Mulkey has consistently fielded one of the nation's top programs. But one showdown in 2011 changed Carter's affinity, when A&M defeated Baylor in the Elite Eight of the NCAA Tournament in Dallas, 35 miles from her hometown.

The Lady Bears had defeated A&M three times earlier that season, but the Aggies prevailed when it counted most, and then two games later won the program's lone national title. Meanwhile, a tennis ball-dribbling 12-year-old girl just south of the Metroplex paid rapt attention.

"After A&M beat Baylor, A&M became my dream school," Carter said.

The 5-7 Carter has been a nightmare for opposing coaching in becoming the first Aggie since Morenike Atunrase in 2005 to win league freshman of the year honors (with A&M in the Big 12 at the time).

'That's an NBA move'

Southern Cal coach Mark Trakh was in disbelief after Carter reeled off the 46 points in December in the Aggies' one-point victory in Los Angeles. Everyone in the building knew who would take the final shot, and the Trojans were helpless to defend Carter on her game-winner.

"My assistant Jason Glover has NBA (coaching) experience, and that last defense against her, she faked it and spun off the screen and came off and he said, 'That's an NBA move. She just pulled a Chris Paul move,'" Trakh said. "That's how good this kid is. There wasn't much of a defensive plan, except, 'Hope she misses.'"

Carter learned those moves on her home grass, on the driveway and on the street.

"Our goal at home is worn down now," she said, smiling. "If we were to go to my house right now, it's probably leaning, from how many hours and how much work I put in with my brothers and dad in trying to be great and accomplish my dreams."

When her parents arrived home from work and park in the driveway, the kids often rolled the goal from the driveway to the street.

"It has wheels," she said of her beloved and threadbare goal. "The kids in the neighborhood would come over and play, and we'd have these little tournaments."

Carter has two older brothers and a younger one, and pick-up games were always plentiful at the Carter home - when the lone daughter wasn't dribbling a tennis ball on grass.

"My brothers and father pushed me to a level I didn't think I could go," Carter said. "That's why I'm here today."

Spotlight: It's Not How You Start, but How You Finish

Charean Williams - 12thMan.com

You would never know it by watching her now, but not so long ago, Khaalia Hillsman was bad at basketball. The Texas A&M senior center is the first to admit it.

She couldn't catch, couldn't dribble, couldn't shoot, couldn't-even-run-in-a-straight-line bad.

Hillsman, though, always had someone who believed in her. In elementary school, it was former A&M star Sonny Parker at his Sonny Parker Youth Foundation (SPYF). In high school, Mac Irvin, the godfather of Chicago's basketball community, and his wife, high school coach Corry, served as mentors. Later, it was Aggie assistant coach Kelly Bond, who graduated from the same Chicago high school. Finally, it was A&M head coach Gary Blair and assistant coach Bob Starkey.

Of course, Hillsman's biggest supporter was and remains her mother, Bianca Hillsman, who worked two and three jobs to make sure her daughter never went without.

"I was horrible when I first started," Khaalia said. "I'm sure they still have some videos of me crying somewhere. That's a really big deal for me is when I'm struggling to find some way to lift myself out of a slump, you need those people who believe in you and know you can do it."

It's not how you start but how you finish, and Hillsman ranks in the top 10 in A&M's history in blocks, field-goal percentage, double-doubles and rebounds. She recently earned second-team All-SEC honors for the second consecutive season and expects to begin a professional basketball career next season.

"Most people never get to do what she's done on the level she's done it," Bianca Hillsman said. "I mean, who would have thought? All the people laughing at her and teasing her, they never believed she would be SEC player of the week, All-SEC second team. I mean, who's laughing now?"

Hillsman succumbed to peer pressure in giving basketball a try for the first time in elementary school. It did not go well.

"The first game I go to, I'm like, 'Oh! Oh, my!' I asked her, 'Have you thought about swimming or piano or something?'" Bianca Hillsman said. "I just didn't think she was athletic at all. She was like a baby giraffe out there. But immediately after the first game, the coaches were like, 'Oh, my God, can she play on our team?' I'm like, 'Doing what? Did you not see what I saw?'"

Khaalia, now 6 feet, 5 inches, always had height on her side . . . but not much else. She was uncoordinated and inexperienced.

It wasn't until the eighth grade, when Hillsman received her first college offer from Southern Illinois that Hillsman began taking the game seriously. It's also when she found love for the game.

Hillsman worked overtime with her high school coach in learning how to run straight. It took work . . . and patience. A lot of work and a lot of patience.

Basketball in the Windy City is akin to football in Texas. Its history dates to the days of Amos Alonzo Stagg at the University of Chicago in the late 1800s. Tamika Catchings, Kevin Garnett, Dwyane Wade, Shawn Marion, Isiah Thomas and Mark Aguirre stand among the basketball legends in the city.

Hillsman's basketball career unfolded against that backdrop of history.

"Basketball is the main sport there," said Hillsman, who is close to NBA player Jabari Parker, Sonny's son. "You play year round. I was on two or three teams, so I played a lot of basketball. Sometimes I would play eight games in a day. The more I played, the better I got. I wasn't doing anything else."

Hillsman traveled 90 minutes one way by bus to attend Whitney Young Magnet High School, one of the most prestigious schools not only in Chicago but in the country. It counts Michelle Obama and the children of Jesse Jackson and Michael Jordan among its alumni. It doubles as a basketball powerhouse, with Dominique Canty, Jahlil Okafor, Quentin Richardson and A&M assistant Bond among those who played for the Dolphins.

That exacerbated Hillsman's growing pains on the court. Kids made fun of her awkwardness, her height and her lack of skills. She was ridiculed, laughed at and bullied.

Yet, Hillsman refused to quit.

"Me being so horrible, it was crazy that I was there with all these elite players," Hillsman said. "Sometimes even my high school teammates didn't like me because I was so bad. But my coach always stood up for me. She saw it in me when I really didn't see it. She believed in me and kept pushing me, and even on our rough days she was still pushing me and standing up for me, and that created a desire to be good not only for myself but for her."

"People were telling me I couldn't do this, couldn't do that. She shut them down and uplifted me, so I could be able to shut them out and be able to work on myself."

Hillsman also wanted to do it for her mother, her hero, who sacrificed to make sure Khaalia had everything necessary to succeed.

Hillsman has a biological brother, but Bianca, as a single parent, knew she couldn't care for two children. So, she did what she felt was best for both: Bianca put her son up for adoption.

"I didn't want to sacrifice her life. I didn't want to sacrifice his life," Bianca said. "It was so she would be OK, and he would be OK. That was the hardest thing we went through."

Bianca worked multiple jobs, but there still were times she fell in bed hungry and times her bank account was drained. Still, Khaalia never went without.

"It's crazy what she sacrificed," Khaalia said. "She always gave me money for our [basketball] trips, so I wouldn't be that person who couldn't go to the mall and get stuff. Now that I'm older, I understand how much of a toll that took on her. I'm like, 'How did you do that?' It was a lot."

Hillsman, 21, turned into a five-star recruit that everyone in the country wanted. She strongly considered Ohio State, DePaul and Syracuse, but Bond's ties to Whitney Young didn't hurt in Hillsman picking A&M.

"We were open and honest with them all the time in the recruitment of her," A&M coach Gary Blair said. "I think that really helped. I think a few schools fed her a lot of bull. She knew she was going to have to come in and be developed, and that's what she did her first year, and then in her sophomore year she just kept getting a little bit better and a little bit better. She really worked on toning her body and really worked hard in the weight room and started eating healthier."

"I just think our whole coaching staff has done a good job with her on and off the court. She loves to go by coach Bond's house and play with Kelly Bond's daughter. She's just a family person. She misses her family up there. I'm sure her mom would have loved for her to have gone some place right close. All mommas want their babies right there. But this was a kid who fell in love with A&M, and sometimes to grow, kids need to get a little farther away from home."

Hillsman, who averages 14.4 points and 7.8 rebounds per game, graduates in May with a degree in business marketing. She hopes to play in the WNBA before a career "impacting people's lives," whether that's in coaching, corporate communications or something else.

Hillsman's struggle was "real." The outcome – a decorated career, a degree and a future in the sport – is just as real.

"It's not surprising because her mom worked and Khaalia worked to put her in position to understand who she was around," Bond said. "But if you look at Khaalia's story, wow! If you look at the big picture of Chicago, it's extraordinary. It's just another volume of Whitney Young, because that's what we produce. That's what's expected of you. It's the bare minimum, and I remind her of that all the time. When she's not having good days, I'm like, 'You know what? Don't tell anybody you're from Whitney Young. Don't tell anybody where you're from if you don't feel like working.' It's the expectation."

"So, to me, it's just another volume, another chapter of the Whitney Young story. But when you look at the big picture of Chicago, it's unbelievable. It's absolutely unbelievable."
