Text of submission	I have been a casual teacher in far western NSW for 10 years. I was born and raised in Broken Hill and after I left the Australian Defence Force I completed my Bachelor of Education to become a Primary School Teacher on the premise that male teachers were needed in the profession. I have made submissions to my department & Government heads about why I cannot get full employment, especially after ten years in the sector. I was told that I only had one location preference in my employment details and that was the reason. Hey, I am supposed to be in a 'hard to get teachers' region of Australia and in 10 years I have not even had a interview for a permanent NSWDET teaching position. Do I want redemption, you bet I do, what is this state government doing?
