Mending the Fabric of the Soul

The SAEM repair for the “Rending of the Fabric of the Soul.”

What?

When an individual has a near death experience or a deep anesthesia without the benefit of SAEM attunement support, their HEMF may begin the process of dying. If the physical body has a cessation of the heart, the brain, or other major vital organs begin to fail, such as the liver, kidneys, the pancreas, or the lungs, the HEMF will start to send the signal out that the body is breaking down and is at the end for the bio layer in this incarnation.

The second it gets the signal the body is dying the Human Electromagnetic Field instinctively begins a slow detachment from the HES. Once electromagnetic energy is not continuing to be produced by the heart, the brain, or the cells the HEMF will start to rip away from the subtle structure (HES). It begins to lift upward above the physical body ripping itself out of the connection with both the BOL framework segments and each of the Layers one by one beginning with the bio layer and the bio-emotional segment.

The light body will start to become more transparent and less personified. The light body is the EMF expression within the bio layer or a manifestation of the light surrounding every cell that forms a mirror body within the bio layer. At death, the HEMF disengages from the solid interwoven connections with the Layers that is reflective of the vitality of the physical body.

This is the “rending of the fabric of the soul”; a formal separation from the vehicle of the body and the subtle anatomy. The HEMF prepares itself to deconstruct by slowly and yet, firmly tearing away from material manifestation. It may only tear part way during a near death experience or a deep surgical anesthesia that mimics death. If a person clinically dies the entire fabric may have ripped away and might not have been able to reattach as the person begins recovery. The Fabric of the Soul does not mend spontaneously. This may account for some of the noted effects of NDEs like being able to speak a new language, or to suddenly have a skill or ability never learned in this life. Because is it such a major event, really a turning point for the soul, there is a kind of “rebirth” that happens when other parts of the HES are suddenly available to the person; parts that hold these new abilities that they may not have had conscious knowledge of before the event occurred.

Why?

It is necessary to “bring the soul back” and to “mend the fabric” in order to not only reverse the dying process but to also re-engage with life anew. This recovers the capacity for the HEMF to function the way its suppose to as it fulfills the lifetime of material expression. The HEMF returns to effectively bridging the gap between the subtle and material experience of life. If the Fabric of the Soul remains torn the individual is more vulnerable to entities and astrals. Plus, they may not feel fully in their body and may become accident prone attracting head, neck, and upper back injuries and stumbling often tripping over their own feet and getting injured by falling, banging, bumping and breaking toes, feet and ankles

Watch for these signs because this is not something everyone needs even if they have been acutely ill and “almost died”. Rending of the Fabric of the Soul is pretty rare. Most of us have experienced a surgical intervention with no fear or experience of dying and so the structure rides through without this type of damage. The awareness knows that being made unconscious is a positive, helpful and transitory state. It is the activation of the Sacred Anatomy at the end of the physical life that initiates the Rending of the Fabric. Emotions such as fear may accompany activation but it is not because of an emotional experience that it happens. These emotions will also show up as Emotional Signatures in the HEMF.

As the bio layer becomes more compromised, and the HEMF loses connection with more and more of it, the electromagnetic field first tears away from the strata of the interior Bio and Emotional Layers. As it starts to get ready to completely lift away from the Sacred Anatomy tearing the strata of the Primal and Mental Layers the disintegration of the HEMF has begun.

The Bio Layer is most effected as all 6 strata let go one at a time. Starting with the derma, moving to the muscular, then the visceral, the skeletal, the microbial and finally the sub atomic level of physical expression. At any point in this process, the dying can stop and when it does the remaining strata that are connected will stay in place holding the HEMF attached to the HES. Hopefully, the strata that experienced tearing will heal and a return to embodiment. When it does it will bring the correct HEMF expression back to the interior Layers aligning with the HES. If it does not, this procedure can do that.

People who are experiencing a Fabric of the Soul tear of disconnection are unable to stay grounded effectively. They will be spacey and forgetful going unconscious and even appearing with symptoms of dementia. They are different from an individual who is overwhelmed and has way too many commitments so spaces out appointments or forgets to make calls.

How?

Repairing the Fabric of the Soul interacts with three systems, the Human Electromagnetic Field, the Layers, and the Bones of Light. The HEMF is a reactive system and as such it is a present tense system reliant on the existence of a physical body. There is no future or past for the HEMF, it's always now, and now, again. So, when there is an issue in the system it continues to traumatize the entire HES by maintaining the tear or rip in the Fabric of the Soul as something that is actually happening RIGHT NOW. The trauma of this is that they are always dying, in the moment of ending, of leaving, of being done. By reattaching the sticky fabric to both the subtle and the physical portions of the Layers and the HEMF, releasing and renewing the segments of the Bones of Light framework healing begins. Then, bringing in supporting energies that lock the repairs into place, literally reweaving the Fabric, we are able to convince the structure that it is fully embodied again and that the death experience is not happening or continuing to happen in the present moment. It recedes into historical memory and becomes part of the Layers story. The repairs to the BOL and the HEMF are absorbed as a matter of course and the entire structure rebalances.

Mending the Fabric of the Soul

1. With permission using the EDGE Practice determine the need for Mending the Fabric of the Soul. Use a combination of sensing, dowsing and interview to arrive at your assessment. The pulse will be tighter than usual and bounce at the edge of the spiritual. The percentage will be no higher than 50%. The client will be complaining of the symptoms listed above.
2. The Fabric of the Soul should read as 100% connected to the Layer and the BOL. When it is reading less that 60% attached it is an indicator for this procedure.
3. Determine the age or time of onset- people usually have knowledge of the event because it was profound but some may have had a series of events. In this case, you will need to look for the first detachment. This will help the client get clear about how the Rending of the Fabric of the Soul affected them.
4. Check the percentage of connection of the Fabric of the Soul the day before the event- it should be at 100% and then check it after the event. This lower percentage of connection will help establish when the rip/damage occurred. The results of this event usually are traumatic. The issue is primarily one of disconnection and impending death so there can be a heavy or disassociated quality present in their life and the way they experience every day.
5. Determine how many locations are damaged in the Layers and in the BOL. There will be places where the Layers and the HEMF are pulled apart and where the BOL framework segments have pulled away from the Layers and the HEMF.

6. Map the places where the HEMF is ripped torn because if disconnection has been abrupt and surprising it will have most dramatically affected this anatomy. This injury is more common in emergent deaths and in accidents.
7. To mend a rip or tear, requires the application of Universal Love and Light on both sides in the Layers and the HEMF as well as into the framework all throughout the affected segment. Use your hands to interact with the subtle energy of the anatomy as well as with ULL.
8. Bring the ULL in on your hands and use light fingers and the ULL to mend the places where the HEMF has pulled away in the BOL and Layers. Knit them back together like pie dough pulling it until it connects and creating a seam that binds wherever needed. Check to see if you are 100% mended in BOL and in Layers.
9. Next you will need to reattach the HEMF to the Layers and the BOL framework. This is done with Soul Radiance an energy that like HEMF Radiance is specifically for this use and NO OTHER. Bring it in liberally and use your light fingers to actually mend the rips and tears in the HEMF where it pulled away.
10. Bring in Soul Radiance (golden with rainbow sparkles)- monitor until complete and the HEMF is at 100% effectiveness .
11. Surround everything with ULL.
12. Bring in: Harmonizing the Layers, Harmonizing the BOL and Harmonizing the HEMF
13. IBWSIB
14. Follow up should be every day for 2-3 days as more Harmonizing Energies, ULL or IBWSIB may be needed.
