After connecting the water supply or storage tank and turning on the water supply, the body of the dumping device will begin to fill with water automatically.

! When the tank fills to the desired level, the water supply will automatically stop. After this, the device is ready for use as intended. The tilting of the body with water is carried out using the swivel mechanism, including the chain with a handle. When the handle is released, the water flow stops, the body returns to its original position, and it refills with water.
