BOBBY REYNOLDS

head coach

Bobby Reynolds is entering his fourth year at the helm for the Auburn Tigers men's tennis team. Through three years, Reynolds has led the Tigers to a 37-52 record.

Heading into the 2019-2020 season, Reynolds had one of his strongest recruiting classes in his short time on the Plains. Tyler Stice and Spencer Gray were both top-20 players nationally and ranked as 5-star prospects. While Finn Murgett, from Yorkshire, Great Britain was a highly coveted prospect internationally.

"I know how passionate the Auburn family is about all its teams, and I know we can succeed, thrive and do great things in tennis here," said Reynolds. "I'm looking forward to working with the members of the team and drawing from all my experiences to put my stamp on the program and its development."

Reynolds, from Atlanta, Ga., spent the 2015-16 season as an assistant coach with Oklahoma men's tennis, helping the Sooners advance to the NCAA championship match.

Reynolds had a 12-year career playing professional tennis, retiring in 2014. In 2009, he reached a career-high ranking of No. 63 in singles and No. 46 doubles. Reynolds appeared in 17 main draw grand slam events in singles and 20 main draws in doubles. Twice, he advanced to the third round of a grand slam event in singles (2005 Australian Open, 2008 Wimbledon) and did so four times in doubles.

He was the 2012 MVP of World Team Tennis and the league's male rookie of the year in 2010, leading the Washington Kastles to four Mylan WTT world titles from 2011-14.

The most decorated player in Vanderbilt tennis history, as a junior, Reynolds led the Commodores to the 2003 NCAA Final and was named the tournament's Most Outstanding Player. Reynolds finished the 2003 season ranked No. 1 in the nation in singles and was named SEC Player of the Year. He chose to forgo his senior year and pursue professional tennis.

Reynolds was inducted into the Vanderbilt Sports HOF in 2019. Reynolds' wife Josie is a former Vanderbilt All-American in the pentathlon and heptathlon. They have three sons, Parker, Mason and Blake.

Chris Hooshyar

Assistant Coach

SMU, 2010

6th SEASON AT AUBURN • 8th OVERALL

Chris Hooshyar is in his sixth season at Auburn and second season with the men's tennis program. A noted recruiter, Hooshyar has been instrumental in bringing some of the top talent in the world to Auburn.

In Hooshyar's fourth season at Auburn and first season as Associate Head Coach, he helped lead the Tigers to a 25-11 record and their second-straight appearance at the NCAA Sweet 16. Three Tigers were named All-SEC – Alizee Michaud (First Team), Andie Dikosavljevic (Second Team) and Taylor Russo (Freshman) – while Michaud and Dikosavljevic advanced to the Round of 64 in the NCAA Championship Singles Competition. Michaud and Russo advanced to the semifinal round of the NCAA Championship Doubles Competition.

In his third season at Auburn, the assistant from Manchester, England, helped lead the Tigers to many program firsts. Finishing the season 24-8 (9-4 SEC), Auburn set program records for single season wins and single season SEC wins. The Tigers also hosted a NCAA Regional for the first time in program history. As a result of these accomplishments, Hooshyar was named the 2016 National ITA Assistant of the Year.

After taking over the team's fitness for the 2015-16 season, Hooshyar worked to build one of the most physically fit teams in the SEC. Finishing 25-28 in matches that reached the third set in the 2015 season, the Tigers went 38-20 in the same scenario last year.

As a player, Hooshyar captained the SMU men's team for his final two seasons and compiled more than 35 singles victories in his four years. He posted the third-highest win total on the team in singles during his final year and second-highest in doubles.

Hooshyar's best season arguably came during his sophomore year when he went 14-8 in singles play, including a singles win in the first round of the 2008 NCAA Tournament against Texas A&M. In that match, Hooshyar defeated Mike Beatty at the No. 6 spot in straight sets, 6-0, 7-6 (6), for his first NCAA victory.

As a junior player in England, Hooshyar was ranked as the top player in England throughout the junior process.

Chris is married to the former Meagan Surrency, who currently serves as Auburn's Assistant AD for Student-Athlete Experience. They have a daughter, Charlotte.

YARBROUGH TENNIS CENTER

In 2005, Auburn University set out to make its men's and women's tennis teams the best programs in the country, starting with a state-of-the-art facility. In August 2006, construction began on Auburn's new facility. On Nov. 2 2007, the City of Auburn/Auburn University Yarbrough Tennis Center opened as a new phase in Auburn tennis.

The facility has 33,314-square feet of indoor space with six indoor courts, 12 outdoor courts with stadium seating and 16 clay courts. The Yarbrough Tennis Center also houses a pro shop, men's and women's locker rooms, concessions and a meeting area. All 12 courts are world-class lighted courts used for both competition and practice by the Auburn tennis teams.

As one of the best facilities in the Southeastern Conference, Auburn hosted the 2008 SEC women's tennis championships and the men's tournament in 2009. The facility was named the 2015 Public Facility of the Year by the Professional Tennis Registry.

The City of Auburn/Auburn University Tennis Center replaced the Luther Young Tennis Complex, Auburn's tennis home since 1978.

Andreas Mies: From Auburn To French Open Champion

Former Tiger earns first Grand Slam title in doubles at Roland Garros in June 2019

Auburn Man Andreas Mies teamed with fellow German Kevin Krawietz to win the French Open men's doubles title, beating France's Fabrice Martin and Jeremy Chardy for the Grand Slam victory.

Emotions certainly ran high when the teammates won match point on the clay courts at historic Roland-Garros. "It feels amazing," said Mies. "It's just an incredible feeling and an unbelievable achievement. I'm just really proud to be able to call myself a Grand Slam champion. It's something no one can take away from me in this life. I'll always be a French Open Champion, and this is the biggest achievement you can reach in tennis and in this sport. It's really incredible.

"It's hard to describe my feelings after we won the match point -- just so many emotions going through my head and we just fell on the ground. It was a moment of pure joy and relief," he said of the 6-2, 7-6 (3) win.

"Of course, we were a bit nervous going into our first final and you know it's a big chance. When you actually win, there's no words for that. It's really hard to describe your emotions, but I can tell you it was a really nice moment. To be able to share this victory with my partner Kevin, my great friend, was unbelievable."

Mies and Krawietz were the first German team to win a men's Grand Slam doubles title, and Mies became the first Auburn alum to win a Grand Slam event since Stephen Huss was a Wimbledon doubles champion in 2005. The last SEC men's tennis alum to capture a Grand Slam event was Ole Miss' Mahesh Bhupathi, the 2012 French Open mixed doubles winner.

Mies, a four-year letterwinner from 2009-13 at Auburn, was an All-American in singles and doubles, winning 83 singles matches and 76 doubles contests during his career.

His journey from Cologne, Germany, to eventual Grand Slam champion took an important step when he chose to attend Auburn University in the fall of 2009. Mies had an excellent career during his time as a Tiger, excelling in both singles and doubles play. An all-SEC player, Mies was the 2012 ITA All-American champion in doubles with Daniel Cochrane and advanced to the NCAA quarterfinals in singles and doubles in 2013, earning All-America honors.

"Auburn was an important step for me in my development and career," Mies recalled. "My goal was to become a professional tennis player since I was six years old. I wanted to go pro after high school, but I wasn't ready yet. I wasn't good enough maybe as a player, tough enough mentally, or fit enough physically. And I improved all of that at Auburn; it was a big step for me.

"It wasn't easy leaving home, leaving Germany to live in the United States for four years. Everything was new to me and I was struggling in the beginning. There was such a culture difference, but I adapted to it and I started to really enjoy it. I improved so much on the tennis court, but also off the court. We had a great head coach with Eric Shore -- I want to say a big thank you to Coach Shore for always believing in me. We had a great relationship; I really liked him as a coach. He was a great motivator and gave great speeches. Auburn was very important for my development and you can see that with my successes on the tour."

There were a lot of difficulties and challenges Mies faced in his goal of becoming a professional tennis player at the highest level. A knee injury after graduation forced Mies to sit out and ultimately was a reason he started to focus on becoming a doubles player professionally.

"It's quite interesting," said Mies. "I started in 2013 but I had a knee injury that went through my last season at Auburn and had to get surgery in 2015. It was a major surgery and I was out for a whole year. I tried to get into singles after that, but it was too difficult on my body, so I focused on doubles and became a doubles specialist."

"The plan paid off, I guess. My goal was to get to the Challenger level as quickly as possible and I got there in 2016. It took me a little bit to finally get to the ATP level, but you just have to be patient. If you are just playing doubles, you don't make much money. On the Challenger level, you get like 200-1000 dollars for a win. You can imagine how expensive things get with flights, travel, food, and everything. It just makes me really proud being able to go through all that."

"In the back of my mind, I always believed I would get through that to reach my dreams, which was to reach the highest levels of tennis and compete in Grand Slams. I believed in myself and in my game and all the hard work and the sacrifices over my whole life paid off. I'm just so thankful to everyone who believed and supported me, especially my family and parents. Also thanks to Auburn tennis, my coaches, and my teammates for making me a better tennis player."

Long-time friends and fellow countrymen, Mies and his doubles partner Kevin Krawietz only started their competitive partnership in April, 2018, and have developed quite the chemistry over their short time together. After the pair of victories at the New York Open and the French Open, the teammates are now ranked 22nd in the world. "I think the key for a great doubles team is to play with a consistent partner. When you change partners a lot, you have to continue to adapt to that partner's style. It's not easy. With Kevin, we clicked right away, and we won our first tournament. We built a lot of confidence together and believed in our chemistry."

"Now after one year, we have like a blind chemistry. I know how he wants to play, which shots he's playing in certain moments and he knows exactly what I'm doing. We talk about tennis and tactics and what we can improve on. We still have things we can improve on, but we just really complement each other well. Kevin is more the calm, relaxed and I'm the guy that's a little more open, with energy. Sometimes when I have too much energy, I can look at Kevin and he can help me relax. At the same time, when he's a bit too calm, I can jump in and he can feed off my energy and emotion. You can see that in our results and we've just been having great success. It seems like a perfect partnership. We are happy with it and hope to continue to play together for many years."

Mies and Krawietz won their first ATP tournament in January at the New York Open. The German duo didn't lose a single set in route to the doubles championship, showing them that they had the ability to compete at the highest level.

"It gave us a lot of confidence," said Mies. "Coming from the Challenger level, we've played so many matches together, we have a lot of confidence."

"I'd say our confidence really started when we qualified and made the third round of Wimbledon (last summer). We realized that we can compete with anyone in the world. We believed in ourselves and we just needed to have some patience to compete on the ATP level. In New York, we didn't lose a set all week, and this victory in France is just another level -- it's just beyond expectations. It's the biggest achievement in our sport."

"I remember watching these tournaments as a kid and being able to compete in tournaments like Wimbledon and the French Open is just a dream come true. Now making good results in these tournaments is even crazier. With our win at the French Open, we will continue to work hard and hopefully continue to win more Grand Slam titles in the future."

Mies has some advice for current and future Auburn Tigers who want to make it to the top of the tennis world.

"My biggest advice is really to just always believe in yourself and work hard. Even though it's not easy at times, just never stop believing and keep trying to improve each day coming to practice. Try to improve your weaknesses and your strengths. You have to believe, and you have to have the work ethic.

"It's not all about talent; use your time at Auburn to improve and to develop yourself as a player and person. You have to work your way up from the Futures to the Challengers and then the ATP. Just really enjoy what you are doing and enjoy playing tennis."

Auburn holds a special place in Mies' heart and he wanted to let the Auburn family know how much he appreciates it.

"I just want to say thank you to the Auburn family for welcoming me," said Mies. "It was a great time at Auburn and I am glad I was a part of it and got my degree. Auburn really helped me on my journey to becoming a Grand Slam Champion. I just want to say thanks and give a big shout out to all the people in Auburn who played a part in my development as a player and person."
