

Who we are

EHE Europe brings together patients and advocacy groups affected by the ultra-rare sarcoma EHE across Europe. By connecting people across borders, we reduce isolation, share knowledge and create a stronger collective voice for a disease affecting only around one person in a million.

What we are working on

We are building the infrastructure that ultra-rare cancers lack: coordinated clinical expertise, European biobanks, patient registries and sustainable research funding. We also advocate for policies that recognise the unique challenges of diseases as rare as EHE.

What's the one thing we need next

We need stronger European collaborations. No single country has enough patients to answer the key questions about EHE alone. By connecting patients, researchers, clinicians and policymakers, we can accelerate progress and create a model for other ultra-rare diseases.
