

FOR THE GREEN HEART OF EUROPE

WWF-CEE as Horizon Europe consortium partner, 2026

together possible®

Our purpose: Together, for nature and people.

We are here to catalyse solutions to save the globally important forests, rivers, wetlands and species in the “Green Heart of Europe”, for a sustainable future for nature and people.

What makes WWF-CEE a good Horizon Europe partner (1)

Regional Expertise and Presence:

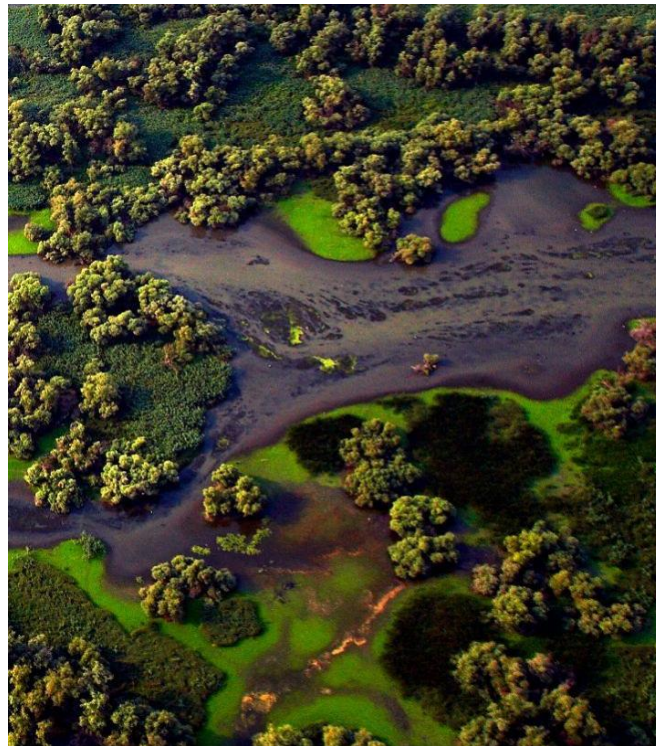

WWF Central and Eastern Europe (CEE) has a strong, well-established on-the-ground presence in the region. Our deep understanding of local ecological, social, and political contexts ensures that projects are tailored to address region-specific challenges in natural resource management and climate resilience.

Proven Track Record in Conservation and Restoration:

WWF CEE has successfully implemented numerous conservation, restoration and climate initiatives across diverse ecosystems.

Strong Networks and Stakeholder Engagement:

With extensive relationships among local governments, communities, and other environmental NGOs, WWF CEE can facilitate effective multi-stakeholder collaboration. Our teams are translating research outputs into practical, scalable actions and policy interventions.

What makes WWF-CEE a good Horizon Europe partner (2)

Policy Influence and Advocacy:

WWF CEE is recognized for its influential role in shaping environmental policy at supra-national and national levels. Our ability to advocate for sustainable resource management practices and climate solutions enhances the likelihood of project success and the implementation of innovative environmental strategies.

Alignment with Horizon Europe Objectives:

Our commitment to biodiversity conservation, sustainable resource management, and climate change mitigation and adaptation aligns well with Horizon Europe's aims. Partnering with WWF CEE brings not only technical and operational expertise but also a strategic vision that can drive transformative change in the region.

7 legal entities in 7 countries:

WWF-CEE can move into consortia with offices that fit best.

What is WWF-CEE interests in joining a Horizon Europe consortium?

Innovation and partnerships:

WWF-CEE is driven to foster innovation as key strategy for developing responses to the daunting challenges of the conservation and climate agenda. A key mechanism is partnering with research organisations and think tanks to jointly develop new, effective solutions. Horizon Europe provides this opportunity and covers associated costs.

WWF-CEE is particularly interested in joining consortia that explore and test innovative ways of mobilizing investments in climate and biodiversity action such as landscape finance or biodiversity, climate, and water credits.

However, we are also interested in calls that help us advance with our “classical” environmental agenda such as biodiversity conservation or nature-safe renewable energy deployment.

Contacts:

Irene Lucius, WWF-CEE Regional
Conservation Director, ilucius@wwfcee.org

Marina Banusheva, WWF-CEE Regional Proposal Development Expert, mbanusheva@wwfcee.org