Listening closely, creating together and delivering better are the core values of how we work. This means by listening to our stakeholders with care, we design buildings that people need and love.

Introducing Oberlanders

As a multi-award-winning design studio, we are recognised for creating high quality, deliverable designs and realising the most complex of projects on time and on budget.

Our client-led, bespoke approach balances aspirational, human-centric design with environmental sustainability, technical excellence and commercial viability.

As part of the IDeA network, a global collective of Architects, we better serve our clients, across Europe and beyond, through a network of collaborators with specialist skills, local knowledge and local delivery.

Human-centric design

From the outset, our design approach looks beyond a building's primary function to understand its broader impact and the value it can bring to surrounding communities and regions, both visually and functionally, from the smallest detail in a single building to masterplanning a complex ecosystem.

Rooted in sustainability

Protecting the environment through considered design is a fundamental principle of good architecture. Sustainable practices thread through all our work, but ensuring they are delivered in line with need and budget is where the true value lies.

Commercial by design

Commercial thinking underpins everything we do, ensuring we deliver maximum value for our clients while balancing the need for aspirational design. It ensures we design to the art of the possible within the realities of budgets and timescales.

Critical services design

Oberlanders have a diverse portfolio of projects which crosses many sectors, allowing us to cross pollinate ideas and innovate in our designs.

In complex contexts like Ukraine, we bring experience in critical service design including healthcare, housing, energy, and education, rebuilding not only infrastructure but the fabric of communities.

Guided by our experience in conservation, we ensure that our approach to design and delivery honours the unique heritage that defines each place.

Housing

Our award-winning portfolio is testament to the care and responsibility we carry when designing places and spaces for people to live and thrive. We have a breadth of knowledge across the residential sector, be it new build, adaptive re-use, modular, high-rise or build-to-rent through to masterplanning whole new communities.

Healthcare

Healthcare buildings are complex. As a multi-award-winning practice, we've been at the forefront of healthcare design for over twenty years. Be it masterplanning a healthcare campus or advising on the technical details behind surgical spaces, our team are fully trained in healthcare design including all technical and statutory guidance.

Energy

Routed in having a positive impact on people, place and environment, our work in the energy sector enables positive change. From repurposing a historic mill into a state-of-the-art battery technology research facility, to designing an energy centre for a low carbon district heating network to supply 3000 homes, our energy experience is diverse.
