BIOGRAPHY

MARK LAUVE served in the United States Marine Corps from 1995 to 1999, where he developed the discipline and leadership skills that would later support a long and accomplished career in construction and engineering. With over 23 years of hands-on experience in the field, Mark has led numerous large-scale civil infrastructure projects, including freeway widening efforts that required the complex relocation of 47 manholes and extensive duct structures containing both copper and fiber optic communications networks. His work has taken him into some of the most challenging environments, including coordinating emergency demolition and reconstruction of critical network infrastructure following wildfires in mountainous and remote pass areas.

As a Construction and Engineering Manager, Mark frequently led coordination efforts with city and county municipalities, navigating the complexities of permitting, code compliance, and right-of-way agreements. His extensive civil engineering knowledge, combined with a deep understanding of both utility systems and regulatory frameworks, has made him a key figure in project planning and execution. Now working as a Senior Building Consultant, Mark leverages his decades of field experience to provide high-level insights and practical solutions, making him a trusted advisor in construction consulting.
