REVOLVER

Leo Erazo is the winemaker of Revolver, a project that supports small, family growers in the much lauded Itata subregion of Guarilhue. Guarilhue is known for its old bush vines, its proximity to the Pacific Ocean, and its decomposed granite which is almost identical to Morgon. Much of the grapes from this area are often sold at inexpensive prices and blended in to bulk wines. Leo was motivated to elevate some of his favorite growers and pay them better prices so they can continue to operate their vineyards and incentivize them to continue to farm organically. We currently import Revolver Pais which is comprised of fruit from four vineyards, Leo's and three other family's, all of which are smaller than two hectares, and in Leo's words are crazy old vines. Leo's home and winery are located atop a cliff in Cobquecura overlooking the Pacific Ocean.
