Informal Resolution of Title IX Cases in Higher Education

An Analysis of ADR Opportunities Under the New Regulations

By Michael J. Davis

ON MAY 26, 2020, THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION released its most recent regulations on sexual harassment, including sexual assault as a particularly egregious form of harassment, under Title IX of the Education Amendments Act of 1972.¹² These regulations presume about 25% of all Title IX grievances will be resolved by a method of “informal resolution” through alternative dispute resolution (ADR) following the effective date of the regulations.³ The regulations have been challenged by multiple federal lawsuits and are potentially subject to injunction, but otherwise became effective August 14, 2020.⁴

Section 106.45(b)(9) of the final regulations explicitly permits the pursuance of “informal resolution” of all Title IX investigations initiated by a college or university system with the voluntary, informed and written consent of the parties.⁵

complaint, with the voluntary consent of both the complainant and respondent, which may encourage some complainants to file a formal complaint where they may have been reluctant to do so if a full investigation and adjudication was

Title IX resolution by ADR methods is required by regulatory language to be “reasonably prompt” in the same manner as a full investigation. The autonomy of colleges and universities is rather broad in terms of choosing

What does it mean to “investigate”

- Investigations are unbiased and professional.
- You do not “take a side” or use investigation as an opportunity to lecture, counsel, or mentor.
- Emphasize at every point that your duty is to collect evidence and produce a written report.

What does this training cover?

1. Definition of Sexual Harassment
2. Retaliation
3. Scope of “educational program or activity” ...
4. Avoidance of “prejudgment” and other bias & Conflict of Interest
5. Investigations and Investigative Reports
6. “...prior sexual behavior” as evidence and limitations on such

What doesn't this training cover?

- Mandatory technology training for hearings.
- Prior to any hearing on which you serve as a decision maker, you MUST train yourself or receive training on the technology used to facilitate the hearing. If you train yourself on this, keep a record of the resources you used to learn. If they were videos online, or web pages, keep a list of what those training materials were, and send them to your Title IX Coordinator.
- Why send the training materials to your Title IX Coordinator? Because all training materials must be posted publicly on the institutional website. Yes, even the training material you are looking at right now.

What doesn't this training cover?

- This training does not cover other civil rights
 - Race; religion; national origin; genetic information; age; veteran status...

Title IX Sexual Harassment Definition

<https://www.federalregister.gov/documents/2020/05/19/2020-10512/nondiscrimination-on-the-basis-of-sex-in-education-programs-or-activities-receiving-federal>

§ 106.30 has a mandatory definition

- (i) An employee conditioning educational benefits on participation in unwelcome sexual conduct (i.e., quid pro quo);
- (ii) Unwelcome conduct that a reasonable person would determine is so severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive that it effectively denies a person equal access to the educational institution's education program or activity; or
- (iii) Sexual assault (as defined in the Clery Act), or dating violence, domestic violence, or stalking as defined in the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA).

What does the Dept. of Ed. Say?

- “serious incidents that jeopardize equal educational access exceed the threshold and are actionable.” 85 Fed Reg. 30160
- Generally: only apply the “severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive” analysis for a hostile environment analysis, not the quid pro quo harassment or the VAWA/Clery offenses – which are considered to be per se actionable if true.

Quid Pro Quo Harassment

- (i) An employee conditioning educational benefits on participation in unwelcome sexual conduct (i.e., quid pro quo);
- “Unwelcome” is looked at in a subjective manner that takes into account whether the complainant sees the conduct as unwelcome (more on this later).
- DOES NOT need to be severe, pervasive, and/or objectively offensive for there to be a violation.
- Can be expressly communicated, or implied from the circumstances.
- If such a proposition came from a non-employee it could be considered under the second or third prong of harassment, but not the first.

Hostile Environment: Severe, Pervasive, and Objectively Offensive

(ii) Unwelcome conduct that a reasonable person would determine is so severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive that it effectively denies a person equal access to the educational institution's education program or activity;

- Language is intended to protect free speech when the conduct in question is expressive or purely verbal conduct.
- The Title VII standard (in the workplace) is “severe or pervasive” which seems to be a lesser standard. DO NOT GET THESE CONFUSED.
- There is no intent requirement. There should be no attempt to rationalize the behavior, only an attempt to determine if the definition is met.
- “...must be evaluated in light of the known circumstances and depend on the facts of each situation, but must be determined from the perspective of a reasonable person standing in the shoes of the complainant.” 85 Fed. Reg. 30156

Unwelcome Conduct and the Reasonable Person Standard

- Look at the conduct as if you were a reasonable person in the same position, and same unique circumstances of the complainant's position in the case. (The position itself may be contested)
- Would a reasonable person in such a position feel the conduct was unwelcome?
- Dept. of Ed. Says: “[it]depends on a constellation of factors including the ages and numbers of parties involved.” 85 Fed. Reg. 30150

When Considering Hostile Environment, it must effectively deny equal access to an education program or activity

- “Title IX is concerned with sex discrimination in an education program or activity” and “does not stand as a Federal civility code that requires [educational institutions] to prohibit every instance of unwelcome or undesirable behavior.” See 85 Fed. Reg. at 30170.

Dating Violence, Domestic Violence, Sexual Assault, and Stalking

- These are defined in policy using the mandatory Clery Act definitions from the 2014 regulations.
- No “severe, pervasive, and/or objectively offensive” analysis is needed – only a determination of whether the definitions are met.
- Even a single instance of sexual assault can be a violation.
- Definition of consent is highly important in these cases.

Dating Violence,
Domestic Violence,
Sexual Assault, and Stalking.

What is Sexual Assault?

- The Clery amendments state that sexual assault is, “[a]n offense that meets the definition of rape, fondling, incest, or statutory rape as used in the FBI's UCR program...”
- Those corresponding definitions are:

What is Sexual Assault?

- Rape: The penetration, no matter how slight, of the vagina or anus with any body part or object, or oral penetration by a sex organ of another person, without the consent of the victim.
- Sex Offenses: Any sexual act directed against another person, without the consent of the victim, including instances where the victim is incapable of giving consent.
 - Fondling—The touching of the private body parts of another person for the purpose of sexual gratification, without the consent of the victim, including instances where the victim is incapable of giving consent because of age or temporary or permanent mental incapacity.
 - Incest—Sexual intercourse between persons who are related to each other within the degrees wherein marriage is prohibited by law.
 - Statutory Rape—Sexual intercourse with a person who is under the statutory age of consent.

What is Dating Violence?

- Violence committed by a person who is or has been in a social relationship of a romantic or intimate nature with the victim.
- The existence of such a relationship shall be determined based on the reporting party's statement and with consideration of the length of the relationship, the type of relationship, and the frequency of interaction between the persons involved in the relationship.
- Dating violence includes, but is not limited to, sexual or physical abuse or the threat of such abuse. Dating violence does not include acts covered under the definition of domestic violence.

What is Domestic Violence?

- A felony or misdemeanor crime of violence committed:
 - By a current or former spouse or intimate partner of the victim;
 - By a person with whom the victim shares a child in common;
 - By a person who is cohabitating with, or has cohabitated with, the victim as a spouse or intimate partner;
 - By a person similarly situated to a spouse of the victim under the domestic or family violence laws of the jurisdiction in which the crime of violence occurred;
 - By any other person against an adult or youth victim who is protected from that person's acts under the domestic or family violence laws of the jurisdiction in which the crime of violence occurred.

What is Domestic Violence?

- To categorize an incident as Domestic Violence, the relationship between the perpetrator and the victim must be more than just two people living together as roommates. The people cohabitating must be current or former spouses or have an intimate relationship

What is Stalking?

- Engaging in a course of conduct directed at a specific person that would cause a reasonable person to fear for his/ her safety or the safety of others; or suffer substantial emotional distress.

More on Stalking

- Course of conduct means two or more acts, including, but not limited to, acts in which the stalker directly, indirectly, or through third parties, by any action, method, device, or means follows, monitors, observes, surveils, threatens, or communicates to or about, a person, or interferes with a person's property.
- Substantial emotional distress means significant mental suffering or anguish that may, but does not necessarily, require medical or other professional treatment or counseling.
- Reasonable person means a reasonable person under similar circumstances and with similar identities to the victim.

Retaliation

Retaliation under Title IX

- The University nor any other person may intimidate, threaten, coerce, or discriminate against any individual for the purpose of interfering with any right or privilege secured by title IX or because the individual has made a report or complaint, testified, assisted, or participated or refused to participate in any manner in an investigation, proceeding, or hearing.
- Intimidation, threats, coercion, or discrimination, including charges against an individual for code of conduct violations that do not involve sex discrimination or sexual harassment, but arise out of the same facts or circumstances as a report or complaint of sex discrimination, or a report or formal complaint of sexual harassment, for the purpose of interfering with any right or privilege secured by title IX constitutes retaliation.

Retaliation in a nutshell

- When a Respondent, or the University itself, takes adverse action against a complainant or someone who has supported or provided information in a complaint, AND the adverse action is for retaliatory motive, then the retaliation is prohibited.
- The nexus between adverse action and retaliatory motive is crucial.
- While tricky, the motive can be inferred from the circumstances.

Retaliation backstop...

- The exercise of rights protected under the First Amendment does not constitute retaliation.
- Charging an individual with a code of conduct violation for making a materially false statement in bad faith in the course of a grievance proceeding under this part does not constitute retaliation

The Scope of Carl
Albert State College
Education Programs
and Activities

Educational Program or Activity

- Only applies to sexual harassment “in an education program or activity of the recipient against a person in the United States”

Education Program or Activity

- Includes “locations, events, or circumstances over which the recipient exercised substantial control over both the respondent and the context in which the sexual harassment occurs”
 - Includes any building owned or controlled by a student organization that is officially recognized by a postsecondary institution
 - Complainant must be participating in, or attempting to participate in, the recipient’s educational program or activity at the time of filing a Formal Complaint

What about off campus?

- Does not apply to study abroad.
- Off-campus conduct covered if any of three conditions are met:
 - The off-campus conduct occurs as part of the recipient's operations;
 - The recipient exercised substantial control over the respondent AND the context of alleged sexual harassment that occurred; or
 - The incident occurred at an off-campus building owned or controlled by a student organization officially recognized by the institution
 - Does not matter if recipient exercised substantial control over the respondent—officially recognizing the student organization is enough

Institution must have “substantial control.”

- “Substantial control”—no single factor is determinative, but consider whether the recipient funded, promoted, or sponsored the event or circumstance where the alleged harassment occurred.

Online Harassment

- Program or activity includes all operations, which “may certainly include computer and internet networks, digital platforms, and computer hardware or software owned or operated by, or used in the operations of, recipient.”
- But does an institution have substantial control over a student while studying remotely?
 - “A student using a personal device to perpetrate online sexual harassment during class time may constitute a circumstances over which the recipient exercises substantial control.”
- Consider two students texting or using social media while a synchronous online class is proceeding, in which they are enrolled...

Conflict of Interest, Bias, and Neutrality

Isn't this common sense? Not really.

- §106.45(b)(1)(iii) requires training on: “...how to conduct an investigation and grievance process including hearings, appeals, and informal resolution processes, as applicable, and how to serve impartially, including by avoiding prejudgment of the facts at issue, conflicts of interest, and bias.
- The four items in yellow, above, are covered in this training. The Title IX regulations do not offer substantive definitions, but there are some hints as to the intentions of these phrases.

Conflict of Interest

- The phrase “conflict of interest” is found verbatim 67 times in the Title IX sexual harassment regulations.
- The existence of a conflict of interest on the part of an investigator or hearing decision-maker can be grounds for an appeal, if it affected the outcome.

What is NOT a Conflict of Interest?

Just some examples:

- A female victim of sexual assault is not automatically biased against men.
- A self described feminist is not automatically biased against men.
- Someone who has been a victim advocate is not automatically biased against respondents.
- Employees are not automatically conflicted because of their employment.

Conflict of Interest

- Exists when the investigator or hearing decisionmaker knows one of the parties or witnesses as a friend, family member, or in another capacity that
 - Affects their neutrality or ability to be nonprejudicial.
 - Tends to cause them to give undue deference toward complainant or respondent.

Conflict of Interest

- Also exists when the investigator or hearing decisionmaker has a substantial reason to defer to a party or witness because of an employment relationship, social relationship, community relationship, etc.
 - A person should not investigate or make decisions about their supervisor, church deacon, or personal mentor.
 - A person should not investigate or make decisions about their employee subordinate if there is a close working relationship that would be strained by decisions made in the civil rights setting.
- In short: there should be no factor causing the investigator or decisionmaker to have any pause in being fair, neutral, and genuinely unbiased. Even prior animosity between the official and the party can serve to create a conflict of interest because of the interest in revenge.

Then, what is bias?

- Conflict of interest is situational: such as not wanting to disparage a supervisor, for fear of employment or career related consequences.
- Bias is more about deference or animosity based in having class favor for a person, or resentment toward a person due to their category or class
- Bias is any inclination, preconception, or other “lean” that favors or disfavors a party.

What if I have a Bias or CoI?

- If you feel that you have, or have developed, a bias or conflict of interest at any time in the performance of your duties as an investigator or hearing decisionmaker, you must inform the Title IX Coordinator BEFORE continuing in that capacity in any way. You may need to withdraw from the case.
- You are of course permitted to develop an objective position, uninfluenced by a conflict or bias, over the course of an investigation or hearing, for or against a party due to the evidence, credibility analysis, and logical reasoning.
- Do not confuse your rational skills for bias. Do not confuse your legitimate decision-making skills for bias.

Bias and CoI shorthand:

- Don't serve if a party or witness is:
 - Your friend
 - A close colleague
 - A supervisor or direct subordinate
 - Associated with you closely even outside of work or friendship
 - Church
 - Community organizations
 - Research cooperation
 - Someone who you already favor or disfavor for any reason.
 - Someone you already implicitly trust or distrust.

Prejudgment of the Facts at Issue

- Sometimes an investigator or decision-maker may learn information about the case that causes them to prejudge a party, or make unreasonable and uninformed determinations about the facts. This is particularly an issue when the official has a bias about the circumstances from past experience.
- This is especially the case when an official cannot separate specific facts from sweeping generalizations and stereotypes.
- Example: A hearing panelist was one themselves falsely accused of misconduct and is unreasonably skeptical of any complaining party.
- Example: An investigator learns that the respondent lives a lifestyle they personally disfavor, and therefore assumes they are “permissive” in all sexual encounters such as the one at issue in the case.
- Example: A hearing panelist hears that a person had 5 beers, and since the panelist always feels drunk after 5 beers, automatically assumes everyone who has 5 beers is incapable of effective consent to sex.

Presumption of not-responsible, for the Respondent

- It is a REQUIREMENT of Title IX Regulations that investigators and hearing decision-makers maintain an understanding that the Respondent is presumed not-responsible for misconduct until all the evidence has been collected and analyzed, and a hearing has ended, and deliberations have begun.
- If you cannot maintain this understanding, you should not serve as a Title IX official.

Presumption of not-responsible, for the Respondent

- It is permissible for you to form the preliminary skepticism, intuitive searching, and lines of inquiry that are natural upon learning any circumstantial or direct evidence. But you cannot at any point presume the respondent is responsible – you must instead keep an open mind. This is sometimes difficult, but crucial for the following reasons:
 - If you feel you've already made up your mind, you are less likely to genuinely listen to further inculpatory or exculpatory evidence that might change your mind.
 - If you feel you've already made up your mind, this serves to color the way you view all future evidence, interviews, witness testimony, and reports.

Presumption of not-responsible, for the Respondent

- Respondents should not have to prove their innocence and do not have such a burden.
- Notwithstanding the presumption of non-responsibility, credibility determinations cannot be based on a party's status as a complainant or respondent, and recipients must reach determinations without prejudging the facts at issue and by objectively evaluating all relevant evidence.

Presumption of not-responsible, for the Respondent

- The presumption does not allow, much less require, an investigator or hearing decision-maker to presume that a respondent is truthful or credible.
- Merely the presumption of non-responsibility serves to ensure that a respondent is not treated as responsible prior to a final determination. Being treated in such a manner can prejudice that final determination.
- Do not let any emergency removal or prophylactic/supportive measures defeat your presumption of non-responsibility.

Relevance of evidence and Rape Shield Protections

Evidence Relevance

- The Department of Education encourages institutions to apply the “plain and ordinary meaning” of relevance in their determinations. 85 Fed. Reg. 30026, 30304.

Evidence Relevance

- Relevant evidence can be direct or circumstantial.
- Relevant evidence is information that aids the decision maker, as opposed to merely exposing the decision maker to irrelevant reputational tarnish, and facts that do not touch on the decision being made.
- Relevant information will aid the decision-maker in making the underlying determination of whether an event/conduct did or did not occur. So long as it achieves this end, even background and contextual information may indeed be relevant.
- Both inculpatory and exculpatory evidence is relevant.
- Generally, much information is relevant, and erring on the side of relevance is the “safer” direction when relevance is closely debated.

Evidence Relevance

- You CANNOT implement a rule that prohibits RELEVANT evidence just because the information is also unduly prejudicial, concerns prior bad acts, or constitutes character evidence.
- Relevant evidence is admissible, period. But you can restrict repetition.
- Just because it's relevant, doesn't mean it's trustworthy. Decision makers retain the ability to determine how much weight, if any, to give to relevant evidence.
- High Value Examples: (1) Testimony with multiple corroborations, none of which are impeached. (2) Direct physical evidence. (3) Photographic evidence.
- Low Value Examples: (1) Impeached or uncorroborated testimony. (2) circumstantial time and place information. (3) History that may corroborate present allegations in terms of pattern or predation.

Permissible to rely on testimony without CX

- Prior rules prohibited this, and the prohibition is still in the official regulations, but it is not enforced by OCR after a federal district court in Massachusetts issued a decision in a case challenging several provisions of the 2020 amendments to the Title IX regulations.

Relevant Hearing Questions

- Questions and answers in a live hearing are evidential, and subject to the same relevance screening as any other evidence.
- A relevant question seeks to elicit information that will aid the decision-maker in making the underlying determination of whether an event/conduct did or did not occur. Even information that may be considered background or contextual information may be relevant if it aids in understanding information used by the decisionmaker to fully understand.

Relevant Hearing Questions

- The fact to which the evidence is directed need not be in dispute, often background although it does not involve a disputed matter is often offered as an aid to understanding an event or circumstance.
- Relevant questions need to be considered even if a party or advisor believes the danger of unfair prejudice substantially outweighs their probative value.85 Fed. Reg. 30026, 3029
- Only irrelevant questions, including about the complainant's prior sexual history, maybe excluded.

RAPE SHIELD RELEVANCE ISSUE

- Questions and evidence about the “complainant’s sexual predisposition or prior sexual behavior” are not relevant, unless:
 - Such questions and evidence about the complainant’s prior sexual behavior are offered to prove that someone other than the respondent committed the conduct alleged by the complainant, or
 - If the questions and evidence concern specific incidents of the complainant’s prior sexual behavior with respect to the respondent and are offered to prove consent.
- 34 C.F.R. §106.45(6)(i).

Privileged Information

- Questions that constitute, or seek disclosure of, information protected under a legally-recognized privilege are automatically irrelevant. 34 C.F.R. § 106.45(1)(x).

Making relevance determinations

- In a hearing, the panel has the ability to choose whether they deem a question asked to any party or witness as relevant. In our process this will operate as a pause after a question is orally posed by one of the party's advisors.
- During the pause, the decision-making panel may determine to bounce the question as irrelevant, and permit it not to be answered. The panel may vote if the panel is divided on relevancy. If the question is indeed bounced due to irrelevancy the panel must announce on the record a reason for doing so.
 - A standard explanation would be : “This question is not probative on any material fact concerning the allegations.”

Some Insight into Investigations

Before an investigation

- Pre-Investigation Process
 - Investigation Process Overview
 - Investigation and Hearing Flow Chart
 - Investigation Notice
 - Information about Informal Resolution

Notice

- Must provide notice of the allegations of sexual harassment, including sufficient details known at the time and with sufficient time to prepare a response before any initial interview. §106.45(b)(2)(A)
- For an employee respondent, can interview the respondent without disclosing the complainant's identity, as long as no disciplinary action is taken without following the grievance process. 85 Fed. Reg. 30287

List of Notice Requirements

- The letter of notification must include the following and take place PRIOR TO ANY INVESTIGATIVE MEETING OF ANY KIND:

[§106.45(b)(2)(B)]:

- Statement that respondent is presumed not responsible and that a determination of responsibility is made at the conclusion of the grievance process
- Inform parties they may have an advisor of their choice, who may be an attorney
- Inform parties they may inspect and review evidence.
- Inform parties of any provision in policy/code of conduct that prohibits knowingly making false statements or knowingly submitting false information during the grievance process.
- Written notice of the date, time, location, participants, and purpose of all hearings, investigative interviews, or other meetings, with sufficient time for the party to participate.

Supplemental Notice

- If the investigation uncovers additional allegations which were not included in the initial notice, must provide notice of the additional allegations to the involved parties whose identities are known. §106.45(b)(2)(ii)

- The burden is now clearly on the institution to compile evidence.
 - Never, EVER, characterize the complainant in a way that makes it sound like evidence production is their burden. It is an institutional burden, and any evidence coming from the Complainant is merely requested from them by the institution.

Evidence Gathering

- The burden of gathering evidence sufficient to reach a determination is on the institution, not the parties. §106.45(b)(5)(i).
- Must provide an equal opportunity for the parties to present witnesses, including fact and expert witnesses, and other inculpatory and exculpatory evidence. §106.45(b)(5)(ii)
 - Parties do not have a right to depose others or issue subpoenas. 85 Fed. Reg. 30306
- Cannot restrict the parties' ability to discuss the allegations being investigated. §106.45(b)(5)(iii)

Evidence Review

- Both parties must have an equal opportunity to inspect and review any evidence obtained as part of the investigation that is directly related to the allegations, including the evidence upon which the institution does not intend to rely in reaching a determination regarding responsibility and inculpatory or exculpatory evidence, whether obtained from a party or other source. § 106.45(b)(3)(vi)
 - Inculpatory – evidence that tends to show Respondent is responsible
 - Exculpatory – evidence that tends to show Respondent is not responsible
- No definition of “directly related” evidence in the Regulations, but may mean more than just evidence that is “relevant” – institution has discretion. 85 Fed. Reg. 30310
 - Relevance determined by “applying logic and common sense” but not by applying legal expertise. 85 Fed. Reg. 30320
- Investigator should not screen out evidence the investigator does not believe is relevant. 85 Fed. Reg. 30304

Sharing the Evidence for Review by the Parties

- Large production before the investigative report is issued
 - Before the investigator issues their report, the parties must have at least ten days to review “any” relevant information “directly related” to the allegations raised in a formal complaint” gathered by the investigators, including both inculpatory and exculpatory evidence. At the end of that ten day period, the parties have the right to submit a written response.
- More narrow production
 - Create an investigative report that fairly summarizes relevant evidence and, at least 10 days prior to a hearing (if a hearing is required under this section or otherwise provided) or other time of determination regarding responsibility, send to each party and the party’s advisor, if any, the investigative report in an electronic format or a hard copy, for their review and written response.

Evidence Sharing

- The Ed Department does not require or recommend a particular means of sharing this information.
- What is the DOE trying to address?
 - The Department is critical of policies requiring parties “to sit in a certain room in the recipient’s facility, for only a certain length of time, with or without the ability to take notes while reviewing the evidence, and perhaps while supervised by a recipient administrator”; such practices “have reduced the meaningfulness of the party’s opportunity to review evidence and use that review to further the party’s interests.” 85 Fed. Reg. 30,026, 30,307

Example

- For example, an investigator may discover during the investigation that evidence exists in the form of communications between a party and a third party (such as the party's friend or roommate) wherein the party characterizes the incident under investigation. If the investigator decides that such evidence is irrelevant (perhaps from a belief that communications before or after an incident do not make the facts of the incident itself more or less likely to be true), the other party should be entitled to know of the existence of that evidence so as to argue about whether it is relevant. See 85 Fed. Reg. at 30,304.

What about academics?

- “If the academic record of a party is directly related to the allegations of sexual harassment, then the recipient may obtain, access, use, and disclose such evidence as part of the investigation.” 85 Fed. Reg. at 30,432
 - Examples the DOE provides include attendance records.

The Investigative Report

- Summary of Investigation: Gives an overview of who you have talked with, who did not participate but you reached out to, documents you requested (which were or were not acquired)
- Involved Parties: Basic information about the complainant and respondent – Role on campus, employment or major and year in school. For witnesses, this is more about how the witness is related to the incident and who the witness is connected to (complainant, respondent, both, neither)
- Background information: How they know each other, length of relationship
- DOES NOT CHARACTERIZE ONLY EXPLAINS

Writing the Investigative Report

- An investigator's role is more than just talking to the participants but also looking at relevant materials. For students, this is social media and text messages, videos, SANE Exams, security video footage. For employees, this could be getting emails.
- Often requires you to leave your office and go to sites, & visit students in certain contexts.
- Information about Interactions
- May offer tools to the hearing panel on credibility assessment but should not assess credibility within the IR.
- Acknowledgements of gaps in content and efforts taken to resolve.

What Role Does the Investigator Play in an Eventual Hearing?

- The investigator is the key witness at any hearing
- The investigation report is admitted as evidence
- Other witnesses can be called, or the investigation may summarize their testimony
- The investigator can attest to credibility, call attention to discrepancies, and arrange for expert sources of information, as needed

Reading an Investigative Report

- Pay attention to direct quotes.
- Listen to recordings thoroughly.
- Independently browse the attached evidentiary exhibits – not just looking at the description of them in the IR.
- Investigative Report is only a TOOL in decision making. After reading in full: what questions remain? Begin to plan your line of inquiry for the hearing.

Ensuring Victim
Safety and Promoting
Offender
Accountability

Victim Safety

- Keep in mind victim safety is paramount throughout the process of any Civil Rights investigation and/or hearing. The presumption of non-responsibility for the respondent does NOT prevent the University from implementing supportive measures for the complainant, who may very well be a victim of a crime. Therefore: supportive measures can include measures that promote that person's safety throughout the investigation and hearing.
 - Moving from one residence hall to another.
 - Assistance in connecting them with law enforcement, or the DA's office.
 - Measures to keep complainant separate from respondent, such as enrollment in different classes, or strict enforcement of no-contact orders.
 - Hearings designed to reduce interaction while preserving the "live hearing" and "cross examination" regulatory rights.
 - Panic buttons.
 - Reinforcement of Amnesty Policy for witnesses, etc.

Institutional Accountability

- The burden of investigation is on the University, not the complaining party.
- Of course, the complainant may provide evidence in their possession.
- But this does not excuse the obligation of the University to request this information as a part of the investigative procedure.

Offender Accountability

- The VAWA Amendments to Clery, and subsequent regulations, emphasize that there must be accountability when an institution determines that a person is responsible for misconduct. This means, in part, that the sanctions must be appropriate to remediation. It is not enough to sanction a responsible respondent with educational programming if that does not make the victim safe, and if that does not make the campus community safe. The level of sanctioning should in a phrase: fit the offense.
- Remember:
 - END the harm.
 - PREVENT future harm.
 - REMEDY the circumstances from which the harm came.

Have Empathy, but not Bias

Nothing within this policy requires you to be rude, or turn a hearing into an inquisition – and yes, you can accidentally (due to normal human emotions) slip into this mode of thinking.

My advice: being nice is not a bias. Being patient and kind with both Complainant and Respondent is not emblematic of lack of seriousness.

Informal Resolution

- Mediation
- Negotiation
- Agreement-Based Resolution (separate from Mediated or Negotiated)
- Often useful when parties are not interested in hearings and formalities and merely want safety and finality.
- Crucially: Complainant, Respondent, and INSTITUTION must agree.

Title VII

Investigations

Definitional Difference

- “The Department is aware that Title VII imposes different obligations with respect to sexual harassment, including a different definition, and recipients that are subject to both Title VII and Title IX will need to comply with both sets of obligations.” See 85 Fed. Reg. at 30440.

Definitional Difference

- Title VII makes it unlawful for employers to discriminate “against any individual with respect to his compensation, terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, because of such individual’s race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.” Though Title VII’s antidiscrimination provisions do not expressly prohibit harassment, the Supreme Court and federal circuit courts interpret Title VII’s prohibition against discrimination in the “terms, conditions, or privileges of employment” to prohibit harassment based on race, color, religion, sex, or national origin

Definitional Difference

- The Supreme Court’s legal standard for analyzing harassment claims—including sexual harassment claims—primarily focuses on whether the alleged conduct is “severe or pervasive” enough to create an abusive or hostile work environment for the victim.
- Under this existing standard, even if a victim were to experience offensive or harassing conduct, a harasser’s actions will not constitute a Title VII violation unless those acts in total were “severe or pervasive” enough to create an “abusive” or “hostile” work environment.
- In a nutshell: Title VII has a looser definition of harassment. Easier for the facts to meet this definition for a range of conduct.

The Title VII Harassment Formula

- Courts vary in their formulations of this overall analysis, but generally require that the plaintiff satisfy the following elements to establish a prima facie showing of actionable harassment (including that the conduct was sufficiently severe or pervasive, as analyzed under the last “objective” prong):
 - He or she belongs to a protected category under Title VII;
 - The conduct was unwelcome;
 - The conduct was based on the plaintiff’s protected category; the plaintiff subjectively viewed the harassment as creating an abusive work environment; and
 - A “reasonable” person would also objectively view the work environment as abusive.

Now it is time for Questions!

You might be on a hearing panel at any time, and with relatively short notice. What concerns are burning in your mind?
