1. Use the product property for radicals to simplify the following radical expression as much as possible. Assume all variables represent positive numbers.

2. Use the product property for radicals to simplify the following radical expression as much as possible. Assume all variables represent positive numbers.

1500	* Type into Calculator	-0r-	500
			100.5
1015			1100 · 15
			1015

4. Simplify the radical expression. Assume all variables represent positive values.

* Separate the number from the variable on both top and bottom.