Staying in a charming cabin in the Montana wilderness, during off season, sounds like a lovely vacay because I'm cheap. But it turns out someone else has rented this small cabin at the same time as me (ugh) and I quickly learn three things about this ferocious guy I'm double-booked with:

He's handsome as hell in an edgy 'dressed always in black leather' kind of way.

He's not of this planet.

Is this guy a vampire?

Well, hell. And now there's a freaking snowstorm outside and we're both stuck here together with no way out.

And for some reason... this doesn't worry me as much as it should.

The Silent Mountain Man (Movin' to the Mountains)

Author: Casey Cox

Nearly getting killed in a mudslide only reminds me why I hate the mountains. I'm uninjured, but my car is wrecked, there's no way I can get into town, and of course there's no reception here.

I'm screwed.

Maybe it's karma for putting this trip off. I haven't been able to bring myself to visit since Pa's funeral.

And then there are the painful memories that still haunt me of my first love...and first heartbreak.

The summer I turned eighteen, I exchanged letters with a free-spirited, long-haired boy who lived down the road from my father. We hung out all day and wrote each other romantic letters all night. It was the best time of my life.

But now they're both gone, and I'm all alone.

Literally. This mountain feels deserted. Like I'm the only living soul on it.

And then, just as I'm about to give up all hope, a pickup truck pulls up. A man steps out.

Not just any man, though... Pure. Mountain man. Perfection.

Big muscles, a thick beard just begging to be touched, and an intense stare that's making me rethink my dislike of the mountains.

Harrick offers me a place to stay, and despite being a total stranger, there's something familiar about him that makes me feel like I can trust him. Also, what other choice have I got?

He takes me back to his cabin. Turns out, he's not much of a talker. I can work with that.

We hook up. I can definitely work with that.

I almost forget that I'm here to sell my father's house and finally move on from the guy who left me brokenhearted all those years ago.

And then I find a letter in Harrick's house—one of the letters I wrote all those years ago—and everything changes.

Every curved inch of her.
That's why I stay away.

Olive:

Moving to Wolf Valley has been the best decision of my life.

I thought I liked my boring life and sleepy town, but now, I'm not so sure.

There's something addictive about the curvy little spitfire that I can't seem to resist.

Holiday's Cookies (A Holly Hills Christmas Book 1)

Author: C.M. Steele

James Snow just came to get some peace and quiet in a small town away from New York City so he could finish his latest novel and make his deadline. What he didn't expect to find was Christmas Town, USA. Holly Hills should have given it away, but it's like the North Pole's twin sister, and he just doesn't have time for it.

At least, that is, until he opens the ever-chiming door to find a special greeting.

Holiday Belle just loves Christmas and cookies. It's why she owns the town's only bakery. Holiday's new neighbor has just moved in, and according to the word around town, he's grumpy. She just wanted to spread her Christmas cheer with some of her famous cookies. To her surprise, Mr. Crankypants was cranky, but he wasn't wearing pants...just a towel...a small towel...that she couldn't stop staring at until he took the cookies and slammed the door in her face.

Wanting the ground to swallow her up from embarrassment, she hopes to never see him again, but how can she be that lucky? They're neighbors.

A Billionaire's Christmas Wish

Author: Charisse C. Carr

Synopsis

Coleman is a billionaire who comes from money but instead of following in his father's footsteps, he decides to go into business for himself. Even though he was born and raised in Wave City, an affluent black town, Coleman loves to hangout in the hood with people he can relate to.

Jaya is from that hood but was able to escape it by going off to college. When tragedy strikes, she is forced to return home and put off furthering her education for the moment. She is all about family first and would do anything for her parents who made sure she was always straight.

One night, Coleman and Jaya's worlds collide, and the attraction they have for each other is undeniable. They eventually marry and create a beautiful life for themselves, even though Coleman's family was against it from the start. Both his parents and two sisters acted as if Coleman, Jaya, and their son Wolf didn't exist.

Unbeknownst to anyone, besides Jaya's mother and her husband, she has been battling a physical illness for years that causes her to have mood swings and alters her personality. With the Christmas holiday approaching, all Coleman wants is for his family to go back to the way things used to be. With Jaya's health issues and his son getting older, Coleman feels it's time for him to reconnect with his family.

When Coleman and his son make a wish at the fountain in their local mall, a young woman named Joyelle magically appears in their life. When she is around, the magic of Christmas is alive and well. Her warm and jolly spirit rubs off on everyone she comes in contact with.

Will Joyelle be able to guide this family back together in time for Christmas, or has too much damage already been done when the past comes face to face with the future. Dive into the pages of this novella to find the answer.

*Wave City is a fictional town that was made up for the purpose of this story.

The Scrooge of the Mountain (Mountain Men of Whispering Winds)

Author: Tessa Klein

He's big and grumpy. A real scrooge of a mountain man.
And now I'm stuck with him for Christmas.

As a perpetually single Christmasholic, I have a complicated relationship with my favorite holiday. I love spreading joy, but I hate having my relationship status shoved in my face.

This year will be different. This year, a matchmaker set me up with someone who loves Christmas as much as I do. And for the first time, I'll be spending Christmas in a cabin high up in the mountains and wearing matching fleece pajamas with a person... and not my dog.

But the night before we're set to arrive, he catches salmonella from his homemade eggnog. Rookie mistake. I won't let it dampen my holiday cheer, though.

I'm going to the cabin. I'm going to all the festive activities I planned for us. I'm going to drink my weight in hot chocolate. And if Christmas miracles are real, I'll find the man of my dreams hanging around this small town's Christmas tree farm.

But Santa has other plans... My empty cabin isn't empty. There's a grumpy man the size of a mountain inside.

Nick might be ruggedly handsome, have muscles galore, and make me light up like a Christmas tree with a single look, but he has one irredeemable character flaw.

He. Hates. Christmas.

He better watch out: Christmas cheer is contagious and I'm spreading it all over our shared cabin.

But he's not the only one: There's only one bed. And that mistletoe I packed is now hanging over my head...

Author: Cassi Hart

Lucia

I work hard to make sure I'm ready to take over the family business, but it never seems to matter to my family as much as my relationship status. Now that I'm visiting them for Christmas, I feel like I'm caught between a rock and a hard place. You see, in a moment of panic, I told them that I was finally bringing someone home to meet them. The catch? I don't actually have anyone to bring home! What am I going to do? Just find a random person in this little mountain town an hour or two away from the cabin they rented for the holiday? Could I ever be that lucky?

Matt

I wasn't looking to do much with time I got off for the holiday. My job is physically demanding and the rest could do me good. And then I run into this young woman in the parking lot of a local coffee shop. It looks like she needs help, and I'm more than happy to assist. But when she asks if I'll be her boyfriend for the weekend, I know I'm being given an opportunity I can't refuse. A girl like Lucia would never give a guy like me a second look on a normal day, but I'm never going to tell a damsel in distress "no" when she needs help. How bad could this family she's dreading to see be?

Author: Sadie King

If an attractive ex-military biker offered to give you anything you desired, what would you ask for?

Danni

Mom always made the decisions for me: Go to college, get a good job in the city, find a nice man in a suit.

Instead, I've lost my job and I've lost my apartment. I'm single, I still have my v-card, and I'm wildly attracted to the bearded, tattooed biker who rescued me and my broken-down Caddy.

I've only ever done things to please Mom until I meet Colter.

He offers me a weekend of yes. One entire weekend where he will do whatever I ask of him.

It's a fun game at first, but as the weekend goes on, I realize the only thing I want from him is one he's not prepared to give: his heart.

Colter

I don't do relationships. I have my MC club, my vintage bike collection, and my oversized dog. Women are trouble and best left alone.

But when I see Danni, stranded on the side of my mountain and looking like a pin-up straight out of the fifties, I can't resist. It's been a long time since I let a woman on the back of my bike. But Danni is one curvy exception.

She's spent too long pleasing others, and now it's my duty to please her.

There is one last thing I can try. The Temple. Can a simple draw of blood match me to my fated mate? I don't believe it.
