Option 1 – 55€ to 70€

Antibody determination test (IgA-IgM-IgG) against the SARS-Covid-19 virus using the quantitative C Immunoassay technique, so that they can know if you have had contact with the virus asymptotically, and your health status in the face of possible contagion. IgA and IgM antibodies are markers of recent infection and have similar useful characteristics. Both are early markers and are detected in 90% of cases between days 4 and 7 of infection, and progressively increase their blood levels until day 14, then begin to decrease. IgG antibodies are detected a little later (average established on day 8 from the start of infection) and increase progressively over about 3 weeks. They then descend gradually. The quantitative assessment of IgG antibodies will allow us to visualize the evolution of the infection seroconversion process, as well as the recovery phases of the infection. The sensitivity and specificity of IgG + IgM or IgA serological tests combined by immunoassay is close to 100%. We must make it known that this test is not the rapid test for antibody detection. Rapid tests are qualitative (non-quantitative) tests and have a significantly lower sensitivity and specificity to this technique that has the great advantage, that it allows to know the class and subclass of immunoglobulins present in our organism, as well as their quantity. Either way, if you want to take a quick test, we can also offer you this benefit.

Option 2 – 175€

FULL COVID EXAM

With a specialist doctor, in addition to a physical exam you will perform the following tests:

1. Performing clinical analysis: blood count, glucose, urea, creatinine, GOT, GPT, LDH, Ferritin and D dimer.
2. Electrocardiogram.
3. Covid-19 serology (IgG and IgM quantitative immunoassay technique).
4. This technique is not a quick test and its sensitivity and specificity of IgG + IgM antibodies combined is close to 100%
5. In patients who have been covid-19 positive, a radiography of Thorax
- (not included).

We are pleased to announce that both hotels,
