ClickAlgo Limited provides educational algorithmic trading tools and technical analysis utilities for use with third-party charting platforms. While some tools can execute trades, they require proper configuration, manual oversight, and trader input. These tools are not investment advisory services and do not operate autonomously without user involvement.

ClickAlgo Limited (“Company”) is not an investment advisory service nor a registered investment advisor. It does not purport to tell or suggest which commodities, securities or currencies customers should buy or sell for themselves. You understand and acknowledge the high risk of trading futures, options, securities and/or currencies. The Company, the authors, the publisher, and all affiliates of the Company assume no responsibility or liability for your trading and investment results. Factual statements on the Company’s website or in its publications are made as of the date stated and are subject to change without notice.

Trading is risky & most day traders and investors who use formula and chart-based investing strategies lose money. Futures and forex trading contain substantial risk and are not for every investor. An investor could potentially lose all or more than the initial investment. Risk capital is money that can be lost without jeopardising one’s financial security or lifestyle. Only risk capital should be used for trading, and only those with sufficient risk capital should consider trading. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results.

Futures and options trading presents a real trading opportunity that offers investors the potential to reap significant rewards, but it also carries substantial potential risks. For investors to succeed, they must understand how markets function and be comfortable with the volatility of futures and options trading, including sudden price movements, actual market conditions, liquidity, market structure, and volatility. Only capital that one can truly afford to lose should be invested when engaging in such endeavours. Furthermore, investors should ensure they have sufficient risk capital available should they suffer losses within their trading account.

CFTC Rules 4.41 - Hypothetical or Simulated performance results have certain limitations; unlike an actual performance record, simulated results do not represent actual trading. Also, since the trades have not been executed, the results may have under- or overcompensated for the impact, if any, of certain market factors, such as lack of liquidity. Simulated trading programs, in general, are also subject to the fact that they are designed with the benefit of hindsight. No representation is made that any account will likely achieve profits or losses similar to those shown.

The risk of loss in trading and investing can be substantial. Therefore, you should carefully consider whether such trading and investing activities suit you in light of your financial condition.

We have no basis for believing that individual experiences described are typical, considering that results will vary given many factors such as skill, risk management, knowledge, and the fact that trading and investing are very high-risk activities where it is likely you will lose money, especially in connection with day trading and chart-based trading strategies.
