200 East 83rd is new Upper East Side residential tower designed by Robert A.M. Stern Architects for Naftali and Rockefeller Groups. 200 East 83rd marks the first collaboration between RAMSA and Rottet Studio, the renowned interior design firm whose credits include The Surrey Hotel in Manhattan, The St. Regis in Aspen, and The Beverly Hills Hotel Presidential Bungalows.

Rottet Studio designed the building's 86 bespoke residences and shared spaces. RAMSA's unique decision to lift the seventy-foot pool, health club and entertainment spaces to the middle of the tower is boldly expressed on the 'Modern Classical' building's façade and complemented by the gracious Rottet Studio-designed amenity interiors.

Each featuring a vaulted ceiling, honed limestone walls and a double-height loggia with floor-to-ceiling arched windows and French doors, the 17th-floor pool room and Winter Garden create visual drama while inviting the outdoors in and allowing for natural light, fresh air and incredible New York City skyline and Central Park views.

Residents can overlook both spaces from inside the state-of-the-art fitness center and yoga studio. Additional amenities at 200 East 83rd include a luxurious spa and steam room, sauna and custom-designed treatment rooms.

Besides a vaulted porte-cochère with automated parking opening onto a private courtyard and a wood- and leather-paneled library with an adjoining landscaped garden and a fireplace framed by bespoke marble mantelpieces, designed by Rottet Studio.

The building also boasts a children’s playroom and a private cinema. The lobby at 200 East 83rd will be attended 24-hours a day with a doorman and concierge service. Source by Naftali and Rockefeller Groups and images Courtesy of DBOX.
