Mission & Vision Statements

Both mission and vision statements guide an organization's direction.

Mission

- Your core work; what are you going to do to work towards making your vision a reality, and how are you going to do it?
- Explains why the PRC exists.

Vision

- The future you intend to create; your grand plan – how you're going to change the world.
- Describes what it would be like to see in the future a result of PRC's efforts.

Prevention Research Collaborative (PRC) Mission Statement

Updated as of 9/23/20

To provide a forum for prevention researchers, policymakers, and practitioners to identify and address emerging and evolving substance use disorder prevention and mental health promotion service & research needs in Washington State by:

1. Supporting DBHR's evaluation of prevention services;
2. Assisting DBHR in (a) defining the criteria for determining that a service is evidence-based; and (b) establishing a protocol for review and acceptance to a list of evidence-based services;
3. Advocating for state funding of evidence-based and other effective prevention services;
4. Establishing collaborations to initiate new research and share existing research on substance use disorder prevention and mental health promotion in order to improve DBHR's prevention services.
5. Promoting implementation science through the collaborative knowledge exchange of prevention researchers, DBHR, and other prevention-related state agencies and community organizations.

Still need to determine how to incorporate social justice, social determinants of health, health disparities, and/or address health equity

The mission statement answers:

1. Whom does the PRC serve?
2. What does the PRC do?
3. Why does the PRC do it?
4. How does the PRC do it?

Does this mission still represent us well? What is missing?
