

Corner piece

KR-VD-60-200 M

Vertical bends KR-VD are used to make descending 90° angles for KR-type cable trays when the bending radius of cables or other needs require this. KR-VD radius is R=140 mm.

|                                            |                                        |     |     |
|--------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------|-----|-----|
| Product name                               | KR-VD-60-200 M                         |     |     |
| SKU                                        |                                        |     |     |
| Material                                   | Steel                                  |     |     |
| Corrosivity category                       | C1-C2                                  |     |     |
| Color                                      | White                                  |     |     |
| Sales unit                                 | PCE                                    |     |     |
| Packing size                               | 1 PCE                                  |     |     |
| Dimensions (mm)Width   Height   Length | 200                                    | 300 | 300 |
| Weight (kg/pce)                            | 0,9                                    |     |     |
| GTIN                                       | 6438377145835                          |     |     |
| Surface finish                             | White RAL 9010 polyester paint coating |     |     |

|                         |       |
|-------------------------|-------|
| Dimension A (mm)        | 197,5 |
| Radius R (mm)           | 142   |
| Material thickness (mm) | 1     |

