

Gerald Ramsey (Mufasa) ©Disney. Photo by Matthew Murphy

LEAVE A LEGACY

In 1623, The First Folio was printed, preserving the works of William Shakespeare. But how?

If you saw DCPA Theatre Company's world premiere of The Book of Will, by commissioned playwright Lauren Gunderson you would know that it was due to the loyalty, passion and tenacity of his friends, admirers and even rivals.

Despite incredible adversity, this merry band of brothers prevailed and we are left with works that have influenced all of humanity.

One playwright.

Many stories.

And devoted individuals who would not let the work be forgotten.

Since 1979, the Denver Center for the Performing Arts has told stories, entertained audiences, engaged students and left an indelible mark on our community.

As part of your giving legacy, you can ensure that the DCPA — its invigorating plays, bigger-than-life musicals, immersive experiences and inspiring theatre for children — continues to transform lives for years to come.

“They do not love that do not show their love.”

— William Shakespeare

LEGACY GIVING

As you consider your estate plans, there are many ways to provide for both your loved ones and organizations that have enriched your life. A gift to the DCPA will ensure that we continue to attract top Broadway tours, educate thousands of students and enrich lives through locally-produced theatrical experiences.

Kate MacCluggage, Patrick Zeller and the Company of ANNA KARENINA.
Photo by Cheyenne Michaels

Here are a few ways to ensure your legacy continues.

MAKE A GIFT IN YOUR WILL OR REVOCABLE TRUST

- Gift will not be subject to any estate tax
- Distribute hard-earned assets according to your wishes
- Create a legacy for theatre education that can be updated at any time

DESIGNATE A BENEFICIARY

- Name the DCPA as a beneficiary of a retirement plan, an IRA, insurance policy or other account
- Eliminate potential income taxes for retirement plans
- Secure a more artful, creative world without paying anything today

ESTABLISH A GIFT THAT PAYS INCOME

- Receive income during your lifetime with a Charitable Remainder Trust
- Take a charitable deduction for a portion of the gift
- Secure your future and that of live theatre

“As a little girl in Minnesota, I grew up performing in backyard plays. Moving to Denver over 30 years ago, I found the DCPA and immediately made it a priority. It has been a big part of my family’s life.

My husband, Peter Mannetti, and I have been very involved in the DCPA, including both theater and Broadway subscriptions, being Producing Partners for several theater productions, supporting the Capital Campaign, and serving on the Board of Trustees.

Joining the Encore Society is our way of continuing our legacy and support. For us, it was the next logical step.”

- Ruth Krebs

The company of The Who's Tommy • Photo by Adams/IsCom

“On the amazing journey, together we’ll ride.”

— The Who's Tommy

While estate plans are highly personal, letting us know your intentions allows us to welcome you as a member of our Encore Society. Members are invited to annual events that draw you closer to our creative process and deepen your connection to the theatre.

This information is not intended as legal or tax advice. For such advice, please consult an attorney or tax advisor.

We invite you to contact us at 303.446.4840 for information or to discuss your options. Alternatively, as you speak with your advisor, you may share our legal designation:
Denver Center for the Performing Arts
1101 13th St., Denver, CO 80204-5319
Federal Tax ID: 84-0407760

Thank you in advance for your patronage.

