Monthly Accessibility News - October 2025

CURRENT EVENTS, COLLABORATIONS, AND MORE BELOW!

October brings a timely reminder of the essential contributions people with disabilities make across every industry. As we commemorate National Disability Employment Awareness Month (NDEAM), we reflect on why access matters—not just as a value, but as a practice and a promise.

It's also a month rich with innovation, collaboration, and celebration. From engaging with thought leaders at the M-Enabling Summit to announcing major milestones like our upcoming book "Hearts, Hands & Voices", we're reminded that accessibility is powered by real people, real stories, and real action.

Creating workplaces that are inclusive and accessible is not just important
- it's essential for productivity and integration

Honoring National Disability Employment Awareness Month (NDEAM)

October is National Disability Employment Awareness Month—a time to honor the talents, resilience, and contributions of workers with disabilities across industries. At Dicapta, we recognize that behind every accessible video, description, subtitle, or dubbed performance, there are professionals with lived experience shaping inclusive media from the inside out.

Our team includes audio describers, ASL interpreters, bilingual captioning specialists, and diverse industry experts who help us bridge access gaps with precision and humanity. Their work reminds us that accessibility is powered by people—and that true inclusion means creating space not just for audiences, but for creators too.

Save the Date: M-Enabling Summit 2025

This October 6-8, join changemakers and colleagues at M-Enabling Summit 2025—a global gathering exploring the future of tech and inclusion. Key topics range from AI-driven accessibility and leadership in inclusive design to innovations in assistive tech and cross-sector collaboration.

If you're unable to join, don't miss their full post-summit recording which is sure to bring all these incredible assets right to your screens.

Coming Soon: "Hearts, Hands & Voices" — A Dicapta Celebration

We're thrilled to announce the upcoming release of our newest publication: Hearts, Hands & Voices—a tribute to the brilliant individuals whose guidance shapes Dicapta's work daily—our Advisors.

This reflective collection honors the lived experience, wisdom, and advocacy of our advisors through stories, interviews, and behind-the-scenes commentary on the making of inclusive media. Their voices push us further, ensuring accessibility remains rooted in authenticity and respect.

Audio Description by Dicapta Featuring Donkey Hodie

Dicapta is proud to be behind the ongoing creation of Spanish Audio Description for the current season of Donkey Hodie—the whimsical puppet series from Fred Rogers Productions and Spiffy Pictures that celebrates resilience, perseverance, and problem-solving. The show follows Donkey and her friends in Someplace Else as they navigate everyday challenges with humor and heart.

With rich narration, our audio description ensures that all children—and their families—can fully immerse themselves in Donkey’s imaginative adventures. Stay tuned for all-new episodes!
