

Victorian School Days

Victorian School Days

A 'Let's Read Together!' Book

In those times, children always did as they were told and had to follow lots of rules because many of their teachers were so strict.

Here are a few Victorian toys that were made from wood, such as a spinning top and a doll house.

Being a child back then was very different. Few children went to school because parents had to pay. Many went to work when they were little.

We think we prefer our school now because all children can go and not just a few. Our teachers are kind and we play with lots of toys!

Some children could not afford to go to school.

They put on rags and never had new toys.

Children sat on seats like pews and their desks lifted up.

They drew on little slates and had to remember lots of facts.
