Today, we are learning to read words that contain
oe saying /oa/.

Sometimes, o and e work as partners to make the /oa/ sound. Let's say these examples:

toe

goes

doe

Ben and Sam were walking through the forest. They thought that they heard some elephants but soon realised it could not be! The sound was coming from a group of dinosaurs further up.

“Look!” Ben said to Sam. “There is an Apatosaurus. It looks so different to Steg, but it goes slowly like Steg does.”

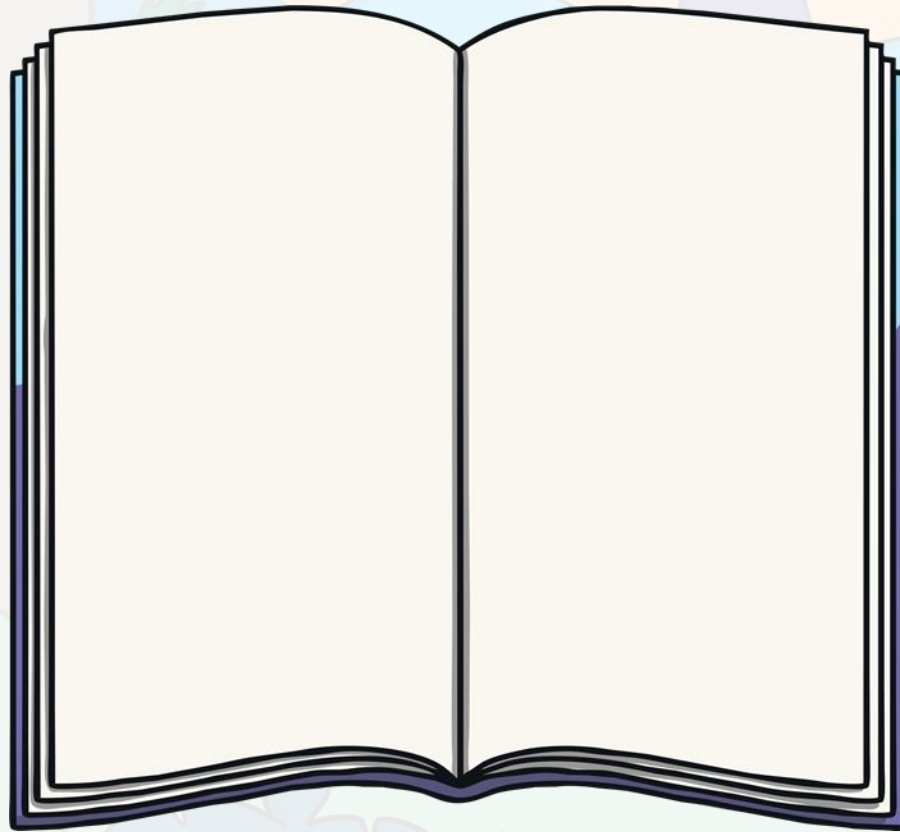

“It has funny toes! Also, a very long neck and a long tail,” said Sam.

“Yes, its name comes from the word, ‘lizard’. In my sticker book, it is called a Brontosaurus,” commented Ben.

“They all have such strange, long names!” laughed Sam. Ben nodded in agreement. He was delighted to be in the middle of the forest during the Jurassic period. He could not believe that he and Sam were actually there.

In Ben's sticker book, there are all sorts of pictures.
Read the words that match the pictures.

Joe the Dino

Read the words and silly sentences. Which words fill the gaps?
Make sure the sentences make sense!

1. This dino is called Joe.
2. He has three toes on each foot.
3. He loves tomatoes that are red and ripe.
4. Joe goes to the river to get a drink.

Quickly, Sam put her hand out in front of Ben to stop him from stepping forward. She whispered to Ben, "Hide behind that tree. Do not make a sound. Quick, go!"
Sam and Ben quickly darted behind a nearby tree.

Sentence Time

What does Sam tell Ben?
Write a sentence to match.

After this herd has been through,
we can come out.

Sam was worried because the herd of carnivore dinosaurs were fighting and making loud, bellowing noises. The noise was growing louder and her heart was pounding.

“Please don’t worry, we will be fine. This is all part of the adventure!” whispered Ben. Sam did not respond. She had enjoyed the adventure up until now. She wondered what would happen next.

Today, we have learnt...
