

Every Class Should Have a Pet

Persuasive Writing

I think every classroom should have a pet because it will teach children about being responsible (the first sentence gives the issue and opinion). I think fish, mice and guinea pigs are good pets to have in classrooms because children in the class can take turns in caring for the pet (reason). They can feed them and clean out their cages or tanks. Children can take turns to take the pets home in the school holidays. Pets make people happy (opinion) so every classroom should have one (closing sentence sums up the topic and opinion).

A piece of persuasive text is where the author is giving their point of view about a topic. They are trying to persuade the reader or listener to agree with them. Their writing should include facts, reasons or opinions to show the reader why they think this.
