Using the Perfect Form of Verbs

Past Perfect Tense

The past perfect tense is used to talk about things that were completed at some point in the past.

To use the past perfect tense, use the word 'had' and the past participle of the verb,

e.g.

I had watched 12 films last week.

Jen had read 10 books in April.

Present Perfect Tense

The present perfect tense is used to talk about things that happened in the past or things that began in the past and are still happening now.

To use the present perfect tense, use the word 'has' or 'have' and the past participle of the verb,

e.g.

I have watched 12 films this week.

Jen has read 10 books this month.

Future Perfect Tense

The future perfect tense is used to talk about things that will be completed before a set point in the future.

To use the future perfect tense, use the words 'will have' and the past participle of the verb,

e.g.

I will have watched 12 films by the time that the summer holidays are over.

Jen will have read 10 books before the end of April.

Simple Past Tense

Past Perfect Tense

The simple past tense is also used to talk about things that have already happened or existed.

However, you may want to use the past perfect tense instead if you want to go on to talk about what happened as a result of that event.

Think about the difference between these two sentences:

Simple Past Tense:

She noticed that I had not eaten breakfast.

Past Perfect Tense:

She had noticed that I had not eaten breakfast.

Which sentence makes you want to talk about what happened next?

Simple Present Tense

vs

Present Perfect Tense

The simple past tense is also used to talk about things that are currently happening.

As with the past perfect tense, you may want to use the present perfect tense if you want to go on to talk about consequences.

Think about the difference between these two sentences:

Simple Past Tense:

He warned me about the dangerous chemical.

Past Perfect Tense:

He had warned me about the dangerous chemical.

Which sentence makes you want to continue by using the conjunction 'so'?
