

Medusa

The Quest of Perseus

The Brass Prison

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com

There was once a king of Argos who had a daughter, Danaë. She was growing up and the king was growing old. The Pythia told him that the son of his daughter would cause his death. To prevent this prophecy coming true, he locked his daughter away in a prison made of brass.

"Now we shall see that the Pythia does not always tell the truth," he said.

Danaë was kept shut up in the prison of brass. She had no one to talk to but her old nurse. She never saw the land or the sea. She could only see the blue sky above the open window or the white clouds sailing across.

Day after day, she sat under the window and wondered why her father kept her in that lonely place and whether he would ever come and take her out. Time passed by and Danaë grew fairer every day. By and by, she was no longer a child but a tall and beautiful woman. One day, the god Zeus looked down from the clouds. He saw her and fell in love with her.

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk!

www.regentstudies.com

Zeus came down from the sky and visited Danaë. He visited the imprisoned girl often - always as a tall and handsome youth. They were married and had a son, called Perseus. Despite all that he had done, Danaë's father began to think the words of the Pythia might come true.

Danaë and her son Perseus were put to sea in a wooden chest. The king thought that if they died together, the prophecy couldn't come true but they did not die. After several days at sea, they drifted ashore on a distant island and were found by a kind man, who sheltered and cared for them for many years.

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com

The Magic Sandals

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com

The cruel king of the island wanted to marry the beautiful Danaë and when she refused, he plotted to send Perseus away in revenge. He challenged Perseus to bring him the head of Medusa. She was one of three monster sisters, with the bodies and faces of women but with golden wings and terrible brass claws and snakes for hair. Anyone who looked at their faces was instantly turned to stone.

Without weapons or any idea of where to find Medusa, Perseus went to the shore to plan his quest. Two mysterious people told him where to set off on his journey and that he must get directions from the Grey Sisters. They also told him that he needed to collect three things from the Maidens of the West before challenging Medusa. He realised the people were the gods, Athena and Hermes, although he didn't understand why they were helping him.

The Grey Sisters

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk!

www.regentstudies.com

Hermes' winged sandals flew Perseus to the sisters. These three creatures were so old that they had forgotten their own age and nobody could count the years that they had lived. The long hair which covered their heads had been grey since they were born. They had between them only a single eye and a single tooth, which they passed back and forth from one to another.

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com

Perseus heard them mumbling and crooning in their dreary home so he stood very still and listened. Tricking them, Perseus made the old women tell him where to travel to find the Western Maidens.

The Western Maidens

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com

Once more, Perseus put on his winged sandals and set off. When he arrived in the Western Lands, he saw the maidens guarding a tree which was full of golden apples. The maidens sang as they danced. The tree belonged to Hera, the queen of Earth and sky; it had been given to her as a wedding gift and it was the duty of the maidens to care for it and to see that no one touched the golden apples.

Perseus went forward and spoke to the maidens. Once they heard his plight, they willingly agreed to help him. They offered not three but four things to help him kill Medusa: a sword, a shield, a magic pouch and a magic cap of invisibility. Once more, he put on the magic sandals and flew off to find Medusa and her gorgon sisters.

The Dreadful Gorgons

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk!

www.regentstudies.com

With the sharp sword at his side and the bright shield upon his arm, Perseus flew bravely onward in search of the dreadful gorgons. He had the cap of invisibility upon his head, making him as invisible as the wind.

Cleverly using the shiny shield as a mirror, Perseus saw the reflection of the hideous snake-haired monsters while they slept. Very stealthily, he went nearer and nearer, always with his back towards the monsters and always looking into his bright shield to see where to go. He drew his sharp sword and, dashing quickly, struck a blow so sure and swift, that the head of Medusa was cut off from her shoulders. The black blood gushed like a river from her neck.

Quick as a thought, he thrust the terrible head into his magic pouch and leaped into the air. He flew away with the speed of a lightning flash. Escaping under his invisibility cap, and with the help of his magic sandals, Perseus left the anguished screams of Medusa's sisters behind him as he made his way to safety.

The Great Beast

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk!

www.regentstudies.com

As Perseus made his way home over the vast oceans, he came across a strange sight. He saw a beautiful girl chained to a rock by the seashore. Far away, a huge sea beast was swimming towards her, ready to devour her. Quick as a blink, he flew down and spoke to her but as she could not see him for the cap of invisibility which he wore, his voice frightened her.

Photo courtesy of iStock.com - granted under creative commons license attribution

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk!

www.regentstudies.com

"Oh, save me! Save me!" she cried as she reached out her arms towards the voice.

Perseus could see the sea monster coming closer so he took the Gorgon's head out of his magic pouch, held it up high and the inevitable happened.

Then, Perseus slipped the Gorgon's head back into the pouch. He removed his cap of invisibility as he hastened to speak to the young girl whom he had saved. She told him that her name was Andromeda and that she was the daughter of the king and queen of the land. Andromeda told Perseus that she was being sacrificed to the sea monster as a punishment for her mother's vanity.

As the pair talked, the king and queen and many people of the land came to see what was happening. As a reward for saving his daughter, the king agreed to let his daughter marry Perseus. Forgetting his quest, Perseus stayed happily with Andromeda and her family for many months.

The Timely Rescue

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com

Despite his happiness, Perseus had not forgotten his mother. One fine summer day, he and Andromeda sailed in a beautiful ship to his own home, for the winged sandals could not carry both him and his bride through the air. The ship came to land at the very spot where the wooden chest had been cast so many years before. Perseus and his bride walked through the fields towards the town.

The wicked king of the land had never ceased trying to persuade Danaë to become his wife but she would not listen to him. The more he pleaded and threatened, the more she disliked him. At last, when he found that she could not be made to marry him, he declared that he would kill her. It so happened that on this very morning he had started out, sword in hand, to take her life.

As Perseus and Andromeda came into the town, they were greeted with the scene of his mother fleeing to the safety of the altar of Zeus. The king was following, intent on killing her. When Perseus saw the king rushing like a madman after his mother, he again took the head of Medusa from his magic pouch.

Photo courtesy of iStock.com - granted under creative commons license attribution

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com

"I promised to bring you a present and here it is!" he cried.

The king saw it and was turned into stone, just as he stood, with his sword uplifted and a terrible look of anger and passion on his face.

His mother safe, Perseus decided that they should all return home to Argos and so the three of them set sail the following day.

The Deadly Quoit

When Danaë's old father, the king of Argos, heard that a strange ship was coming over the sea with his daughter and her son on board, he was in great distress. He remembered what the Pythia had foretold about his death. Without waiting to see the vessel, he left his palace in great haste and fled.

"My daughter's son cannot kill me if I keep out of his way," he said.

However, Perseus had no wish to harm him and was distraught when he heard what the old man had done. With his grandfather gone, the people of the kingdom wanted Perseus to rule over them, which he did willingly in memory of the man that he had never known.

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com

A while later, Perseus was taking part in challenges and games with neighbouring kingdoms. He threw a heavy quoit a great deal further than any had been thrown before. It landed in the crowd of spectators and struck a stranger who was standing there. As Perseus ran to help him, he saw that he was dead. The man was none other than Danaë's father, the old king of Argos. He had fled from his kingdom to save his life and in doing so had only met his death.

Perseus was overcome with grief and had no wish to continue as ruler of the kingdom. He and Andromeda left the country and lived happily in the neighbouring kingdom of Mycenae for many years.

Glossary

Click on your word again to return to the page you were reading.

- anguished – To be distressed or in suffering.
- ceased – To have come to an end.
- crooning – To drone or chant in a low voice.
- declared – To have said something in an emphatic manner.
- devour – To eat something hungrily.
- distraught – To be very upset or worried.
- foretold – To have predicted an outcome, such as an event.
- hastened – To have rushed with speed and urgency.
- imprisoned – To be held captive.
- inevitable – Something that is expected.
- intent – To be determined to do something.
- overcome – To feel overwhelmed by something.
- plight – A dilemma or difficulty.
- prophecy – A prediction of something that will happen.
- Pythia – The high priestess of the temple of Apollo.
- quest – A journey with a mission.
- quoit – A small throwing hoop.
- stealthily – To be cautious or careful.
- struck – To have hit something with force.
- uplifted – To have raised to a higher position.
- vanity – Excessive pride and admiration in oneself.
- vessel – A ship or large boat.

REGENT STUDIES

Focused education on life's walk

www.regentstudies.com