

Friction

How can surface materials slow the car as it travels?

Bonus question: How does friction affect the car while it is travelling across each material?