Directions: Identify the following with a YES or a NO. If there is a problem (sentence fragment, run-on sentence, or comma splice), make the correction(s) necessary.

NO 1. Teens are not getting as much sleep as they need they are suffering.

This is a run-on sentence. Possible solutions include adding a semicolon OR adding a comma and a coordinating conjunction between the two independent clauses.

Teens are not getting as much sleep as they need; they are suffering.

Teens are not getting as much sleep as they need, and they are suffering.

NO 2. Lack of sleep can lead to bad test scores, and bad grades.

This is also incorrect. Since "bad grades" is not an independent clause, there should NOT be a comma included. Omit the comma.

Lack of sleep can lead to bad test scores and bad grades.

YES 3. Teens are sleep deprived because of screen time.

NO 4. Because he didn't sleep well the night before.

This is a sentence fragment. It is an incomplete thought. A possible correction might be to add a comma after "before" and complete the thought.

Because he didn't sleep well the night before, he was unable to concentrate.

YES 5. Sleep deprivation can cause people to be hostile.

NO 6. Are usually in a bad mood.

This is a sentence fragment. It needs a subject. The following sentence is a possible solution:

Teens who are sleep deprived are usually in a bad mood.

YES 7. Sleep deprivation could cause bad grades, emotional breakdowns, and more accidents than drunk driving.

NO 8. Teens don't enough sleep.

This is a sentence fragment. The following sentences are possible corrections.

Teens don't get enough sleep.

Teens don't sleep enough.

YES 9. Sleep deprivation causes more accidents than drunk driving, and sleep deprivation can also cause bad grades.

NO 10. I woke up grumpy, I didn't have a good day.

This is a comma splice. Add a coordinating conjunction or swap the comma for a semicolon. The following sentences are possible corrections.

I woke up grumpy, so I didn't have a good day.

I woke up grumpy; I didn't have a good day.
