

Peggy Fox is the Northern Virginia Media and Community Relations Manager for Dominion Energy, a leader in sustainable energy. Peggy's background is in television journalism. She is a four-time Emmy winner who reported and anchored for WUSA9 in Washington, D.C. from 1995 until 2019.

As WUSA9'S Northern Virginia Bureau Chief, Peggy covered Virginia's major news events over two decades. She won an Emmy in 2018 for her story on the first-of-its kind lymph node mapping procedure and received Emmys for breaking news, an investigation of lead paint on playgrounds and for a series on her brother-in-law who has a traumatic brain injury from a shot to the head while serving in Iraq. She's most proud of her stories that give voice to the voiceless, help to correct wrongs, break down barriers and open minds. Prior to working at WUSA, Peggy was an anchor-reporter in Miami, Florida; Charlotte, NC and in Bluefield and Charleston, West Virginia.

Peggy is a native and resident of Fairfax County and a Virginia Tech Hokie. She grew up in Springfield where she met her husband Tom Horan at West Springfield High School. They have two children in college at Virginia Tech and University of Georgia and are active in the McLean Community. Peggy also enjoys the outdoors, fitness, her pet dogs, and sharing information.
