

Scott Cooper bio:

Scott Cooper joined the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority (MWAA) in 2017 and is currently a Director of Airline Business Development. In his role, Scott is primarily responsible for expanding and developing passenger air service at both Washington Dulles International and Washington Reagan National airports. Prior to joining MWAA, Scott spent 19 years in the airline industry, within corporate and agency sales as Sales Manager for Delta Air Lines, Corporate Relations Manager for Southwest Airlines, and as National Accounts Manager for JetBlue Airways. Outside of work, Scott is a local volunteer with both the Humane Rescue Alliance and Iona Senior Services. Scott received his Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina and currently resides in Washington, DC.