"I started working for my father on a part-time basis during high school as a file clerk. Over the years, I would take every opportunity I could seize to learn a new skill set. Thus, my role evolved from filing, to AP clerk, to payroll, office manager, so on and so forth. 13 years later I am involved to some degree in every facet of our family business. Although this is the only construction company I have ever worked for, it has been my life- growing up in my grandfather's concrete plant offices, traveling throughout the state as a toddler while my father constructed bridges for the State of Texas, spending night and weekends on job sites as my father ventured into home building. As they say, construction is in my blood."
