

I am writing to end live exports.

It's a cruel, barbaric practice that goes against everything Australia should stand for.

I support the phase out and believe that farmers should receive government support to help them with this transition.

Live exports should end as soon as possible, the suffering and depravity animals are subjected to, is inhumane. Australia must present itself as a fair and compassionate nation that does not tolerate or condone such cruel practices. New Zealand is commended for its precedence to end live export. I believe continuing live export unequivocally undermines public trust in Australia's agricultural sector.

Please end this practice, and prevent any more animals from enduring such suffering and cruelty.

No animal deserves to be treated this way, and no country should allow it to happen.
