

Live sheep export by sea

I am writing a submission today to urge the Federal Government to legislate a date for the end of live sheep exports by sea in this term of government.

The decision to end live sheep export by sea is a fabulous step forward for this industry and for animal welfare. However, this amazing progress must be combined with a date for the relevant industries to work towards. This date must be set during this term of Parliament in order to provide certainty for farmers and other players in the industry. It is also imperative that the date is set in this term of Parliament to ensure our international reputation continues to rebound.

The sooner the date for the phase out is set, the sooner all people and industries involved can have certainty and can work towards a better future.
