

Why is Australia so archaic when it to animal welfare? Take an example from New Zealand.

Not only is live export of animals cruel and inhumane, it is downright crazy and uneconomical.

Isn't there enough unemployment in Australia to warrant sending refrigerated meat to wherever?