

I, Marcelle Wever, can't believe that we are still allowing live sheep exports – there HAS to be a better way. We realised how cruel chicken farming was and now there have been changes but these poor young animals are even more terrified with more emotions.

For too long, we have been hearing how Australians want this trade to end and the phase-out should be legislated and commence in this term of parliament as this has been discussed and promised for too long now.

The main reason I supported Labor in the last election was because of this policy and I have always in the past been a Liberal supporter.

These are suffering unnecessarily and it is an extremely cruel practice that has been recognised and agreed so why there has been a delay in seeing this changed, I have no idea why. This has to end now.
