Q5. Organisation name (if applicable)	[REDACTED]
Q6. Entity type	Other (please specify) Wine retailer
Q7. Please select which EU wine geographical indication (GI) your submission is against	Prosecco
Q8. Grounds of objectionA submission against one or more of the wine GIs must be based on at least one of the four grounds of objection.	The EU GI name is used in Australia as the common name for the relevant good, including as a type or style of wine. The EU GI name is used in Australia as the name of a grape variety, plant variety, or an animal breed.
Q9. Please provide further details, based on the grounds of objection for each GI. (If submission based on existing trade mark please provide trade mark number. If submission based on unregistered trade mark please provide evidence of use on Australia).	Prosecco is the historical name of the grape variety used to produce mostly sparkling white wines. It was recently changed by the EU to "Glera", however the variety is still known globally as "Prosecco". It is also the name of a wine style made from this grape. The name change to "Glera" is also contentious as it overlaps several other varieties. The town of Prosecco itself had to be re-designated inside the GI just to bring the Italian argument for change of the name into some sort of coherent order.* If naming of wine made from Prosecco is to be limited to only the designated origin, then in fact only one small village in one of the nine Prosecco producing regions in Italy qualifies, and only because it was recently added to the GI. This makes the attempt to rename the variety a cynical one to protect larger Italian interests, not an historical association of one region to a name. It makes a mockery of the good faith agreements across other regions to recognise and protect regional distinction such as "Champagne", "Bourgogne" and "Bordeaux". *https://www.winescholarguild.org/blog/glera-grape-behind-prosecco-wines
