|      | Stey             |       | 3977        | Australia | 13/04/2023 | "Australians have invested their hard work, money and innovation to save and grow this brand. Now it's huge, hands off EU!"  |
|      |                  |       |             | Australia | 14/04/2023 | "Prosecco is a long-standing, internationally recognised grape variety used to produce wine around the world. It is recognised as such by the International Organisation of Vine and Wine (OIV) in its international list of wine varieties. It is different to Champagne – which is a region and a method/wine as such. Italian decision to call it a GI was unilateral – protectionist motive."  |
|      | Coffs Harbour    |       | 2456        | Australia | 14/04/2023 | "To support Australian winemakers and common sense."   |

|      | Melbourne        |       | 3056        | Australia | 16/04/2023 | "Prosecco was always the grape name (as well as a village). Producers around the world have invested in building brand-equity in the name, and now that could be taken away from them with no compensation. What the Italian government has done is unfair and anti-competitive."  |
|      | Perth            |       | 3105        | Australia | 16/04/2023 | "Prosecco is a grape variety, not a region"  |

|      | Adelaide         |       | 3115        | Australia | 18/04/2023 | "Why not let the spelling of Prosecco be changed to a similar name eg proseccia etc"   |
|      |                  |       | 3004        | Australia | 18/04/2023 | "I love Prosecco and I don't think they should change the name."   |
|      | Glenn Viewwey    |       | 3150        | Australia | 18/04/2023 | "It's a well known issue. Please don't change the term Prosecco in Australia."   |
|      | RENALLA          |       | 3672        | Australia | 18/04/2023 | "A New Australian from Italy pioneered this Variety for Australians to enjoy and celebrate this wonderful wine. Others have also joined. The name should remain."  |
|      |                  |       | 2576        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "It is not believe that Australia's use of the name Prosecco has any effect on European Trade."  |
|      |                  |       |             | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "Australia made prosecco into what it is today"  |
|      | Renalla          |       | 3672        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "It's just common sense to leave it as it is."   |
|      | Mount Albert     |       | 3127        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "Whilst I understand the reasoning behind the EU/Italian desire to protect their position, the Australian Prosecco cottings came at a time when they were also called the Prosecco grape variety, and prior to Italy changing the grape variety name so as to give their wine exclusivity. Australian growers/wine producers are not a threat to the Italian produced wines. Perhaps our Australian Prosecco wines could be labelled "Australian Prosecco" to make it clear to any novice buyer that it is not an Italian wine."   |
|      |                  |       | 3122        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "I love King Valley Prosecco and wish to protest at the EU trying to change the name in Australia. It was brought to Australia because the immigrants loved it and missed it here. It has done immensely well and I think this is the real reason the EU(they), wish to change the name retrospectively."  |
|      |                  |       | 4005        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "There should be the freedom to call or name a wine what it is. It's a grape variety not the name of a region"   |
|      | Melbourne        |       | 3148        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "Prosecco is a grape variety not a region"   |
|      | Ciffon Hill      |       | 3004        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "Australia Prosecco is unique to this country and should be allowed to remain so. The impact on the makers of Australian Prosecco if we give in to Italian interests would be catastrophic"  |
|      | Manawading       |       | 3115        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "I love Prosecco and the Australian use of the name makes it clear what the wine is."  |
|      | Melbourne        |       | 3000        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "It's not a region so hands off EU!"   |
|      |                  |       | 3091        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "Prosecco is a type of wine made from the glara grapes, the name does not reflect a region where the wine is made, such as Champagne...therefore it is nonsense to suggest the Italians have any ownership rights over the term Prosecco"  |
|      | Mladulla         |       | 2539        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "I love dal zotto Prosecco & other Australian prosecco, which are distinctive & local"   |

It is a grape variety & we have been drinking it under the Prosecco name in Australia for many decades. It is a well known Aussie icon & it will never be the same under a different name. Already Muscat, Tokay & Champagne have been forced to change names, the custom does not know what they are buying! There is only disadvantage to name changes like this & unfair to have to do so when they have been used in Australia to define a grape variety for decades, others decades or even years."   |

We should never capitulate to such an outrageous demand for the unsalable reasons that (1) Prosecco is a varietal and (2) there is no region in Australia called Prosecco. Our trade negotiators need to earn their money and work a lot harder to resist EU pressure. We were screwed over with Port and Sherry - don't let it happen with Prosecco. As a compromise the most we should ever agree to is to add the word "Australian" or "King Valley" to Prosecco on our labels. We must not surrender the word Prosecco to the EU." |

|      |                  |       | 2106        | Australia | 19/04/2023 | "Prosecco" first appeared in the printed word in 1754, describing a grape variety. According to an order of the Italian Minister of Agriculture of 17 July 2009, Prosecco is no longer the name of a grape variety (now to be called Glera), but exclusively a geographical indication. This is akin to Australians naming a town or region "Cabernet" and then having a law passed that it is no longer a variety of grape and is only to be used relating to wines from our "Cabernet region".   |
