The EU GI name is used in Australia as the name of a grape variety, plant variety, or an animal breed.

Q9. Please provide further details, based on the grounds of objection for each GI. (If submission based on existing trade mark please provide trade mark number. If submission based on unregistered trade mark please provide evidence of use on Australia).

Prosecco - the variety - has been incredibly important for our region, and has in many cases underpinned the resilience of many grape growers and winemakers in the face of continuing adversity (from China Tariffs to floods to covid etc). It is a variety that grows well in our region, produces good quality and high yielding crops, is economically viable for both growers and winemakers, and draws a larger audience to our region as it is a very well-liked, and affordable variety and style of wine. The impact of changing the name could be another blow to an already fragile industry, that provides many jobs to locals - from tourism, hospitality through to vineyard employees and winery employees. Many wine businesses, both small and large, produce more Prosecco than any other variety in their offerings, and to lose the momentum of this fast growing success story for the [REDACTED] could be devastating. We saw the disappointing impact of changing the name of Albarinho to Savignin last decade, and do not want to see the same happen to Prosecco.
