We need more renewable energy infrastructure. In particular, we need help getting organised to set up community batteries. Individual house batteries are not a financially sound investment, but larger community ones can be. However, it is presently difficult for communities to club together to arrange this. The transaction costs associated with getting organised are high. Developing and publicising a website to help people connect for this purpose would be useful and help get more groups off the ground. The benefit to the community is that this could help stabilise the grid as well as lowering emissions.

Yours sincerely,
