We need action now to lessen the catastrophic effects of climate change that we are already facing in order for future generations to have a chance of survival on this planet.

This action needs to come from individuals, communities, governments and corporations, i.e. everyone at every level.

Building renewable energy infrastructure is key to this action and the Australian government needs to lead in this. Whilst the situation is terrifying and currently looks grim; the opportunity is there to change the world for the better and Australia, with it's massive potential for renewable energy generation, can lead the world in this. All it needs is the will of the people and the political will of the government. I call upon the Australian government to be brave, step up and take every action possible to avert us from the greatest catastrophe that we have ever faced.

Yes, mistakes will be made along the way but nothing could be worse than the apocalypse we face if action is not taken.

Yours sincerely,
