As a recent graduate of Community development and Sustainability I cannot express strongly enough the need for positive action regarding the need for appropriate responsible behaviour to mitigate the risks posed from changing climatic patterns.

Much as the writing was on the wall in the 1980's with Meadows Limits to Growth and the Bruntland Report NOW is the time for action.

I understand that there is not enough raw materials to supply all of the solar panels nor wind farms that are needed however that is no excuse for not moving swiftly in that direction.

Additionally I also appreciate that there are issues with base load and energy storage but nonetheless, there are appropriate technologies that can overcome these problems so long as social license is granted and vested corporate interests are held to account not holding society to ransom.

This is our kids kids kids future that we are playing with now, and that is unacceptable when we are but guardians, We have obligations to leave the planet in better shape than when we came into our time here.

If humanity right royally screws up and cannot stop itself in its need for greed then the planet will get on just fine without us.

It is time to make mandates that count. Mandates that mean something to all of humanity not just a corporate or government few.

How can we sleep while our beds are burning. Ask yourself what kind of a legacy do you want to pass on to your grandchildren?

Yours sincerely,
